Fascists War On Versailles Treaty

WON'T SHRINK FROM FORCE TO 'FREE' NATION

Hitler's Party Howls Down Other Partisans as They Try to Speak DISORDER IN BERLIN
Communists Clash With Police—Streets Patrolled by Armed Guards

Berlin.—(P)—Abrogation of the treaty of Versailles, and, if necessary, to Germany's salvation, war, were proclaimed by Gregor Strasser, Fascist party spokesman, before the Reichstag today to be key-points of German Fascist policy.

Herr Strasser's declarations were made after his fellow partisans had howled down other speakers who were forced to bellow their arguments for and against the government's program of economic reform, which, expounded yesterday by Chancellor Brüning, was up today for debate.

At one point in the proceedings, Socialists, shouting "throw them out," "throw them out," the Fascists replied, "Come and do it!" The bedlam lasted for hours.

Strasser declared that the Fascists were not seeking to embroil their nation in war, but "won't shrink from it if it should become the last means of securing German independence and social freedom." Of the treaty of Versailles, he commented that it was "unjust, and hence void."

The Reichstag session was a "wild, working session," he said, "marked by disorder. In early morning rioting by Communists who fought with police, three persons were injured before the disorder was suppressed. During the lunch hour, police again had to use their clubs to disperse the crowd and late this afternoon the streets were heavily patrolled by mounted police in anticipation of possible renewal of the rioting."

After Strasser's address the Fascists introduced a motion in the Reichstag demanding "expropriation without indemnification" for the benefit of the German peoples of the entire capital of bank and boresse magnates, of the east European Jews and others of foreign race who had immigrated to Germany since August 1, 1914. To make the motion more sweeping, it was extended to the families of relatives of these and to monies invested and increased since that date through war, revolution, inflation, deflation and profiteering.

The motion also demanded that the government take over immediately all big banks, including the Reichsbank.

The Communist Wilhelm Pieck, used the occasion chiefly for a tirade against metal manufacturers but he also delivered a bitter attack against the government, while his colleagues cried "Red Front!" He spoke before an almost empty house.

There were no conciliatory utterances voiced in the Reichstag today. A highlight of the opposite attitude came when the Fascist spokesman, Strasser, turning to the Social Democrats, shouted, "If the Prussian diet is not dissolved now, we do not mind. We can wait because the future is with us. The time is not far distant when he will use law for protection of the republic against you."

"We are for the constitution and we shall maintain ourselves in power on the strength of it. Just wait until the day for squaring accounts with you comes."

Asks Study Of Dry Law At Badger U.

Woodcock Favors Scholarships for Economic Studies on Prohibition

Madison.—(P)—Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition enforcement head, today advocated establishment of scholarships, preferably at the University of Wisconsin and Harvard university, to encourage economic studies of prohibition.

Woodcock said he had a fund of $40,000 at his disposal, part of which was available to endow the scholarships. University officials here have not yet been apprised officially of the plan.

The prohibition director said he was prompted to make the offer because of aid received by the prohibition department through study of theses written at the University of Wisconsin on economic effects of prohibition in Madison and Danvers. He said he expected to confer with Prof. William H. Kitchener, head of the university department of economics, regarding the plan and that ultimately he hoped to obtain cooperation from other schools and colleges in collecting economic prohibition data.

President Glenn Frank of the university, said establishment of any graduate scholarship in economics would first be given thorough consideration by the faculty council on social science, then referred to him, and finally to the board of regents before it could be approved or rejected.

Frank said he would not condemn the plan as contributory to propaganda nor would he commend it as legitimate research for students unless he was in possession of all facts regarding it.

Woodcock said he believed accurate surveys on the economic effects of prohibition could be made by graduate students and that he was not interested in obtaining propaganda concerning prohibition.

URGES INDICTMENT OF STOCK OPERATOR

New York Official Finds Juggling in Accounts of Trust Headed by Bob

New York.—(P)—A request that District Attorney Crane seek an indictment against Charles V. Bob, missing stock operator, in connection with the affairs of the Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., an investment trust of which he is chairman, has been made by Watson Washburn, head of the bureau of securities of the general's office.

Washburn said evidence in his possession indicated wholesale juggling of the trust's accounts, distribution of its assets among various other ventures of the promoter, forging of the minutes of its board of directors and declaration of dividends which never had been earned.

"In point of losses to the public," he said, "this is the biggest case that has so far come to my attention."

He said he would seek a receiver soon to preserve what assets remained for investors. Securities valued at more than $5,000,000 are being sought by the state investigators.

LEWIS ELECTED HEAD OF NORTHWESTERN TEACHERS

Eau Claire.—(P)—The charge that M. Lewis, superintendent of schools at Ladysmith, was the candidate of a "clique" within the Northwestern Wisconsin Teachers' association, proved without effect today.

The organization elected Lewis as president over Paul G. W. Keller. Eau Claire superintendent formerly of Appleton, by a vote of 383 to 217.

In nominating Keller yesterday, Harley M. Brook, director of vocational education here, charged a "ring" dominated and controlled the elections. He said Keller was an independent, "tied down by no promises and making no trades."

Harold M. Mason, River Falls, who nominated Lewis, the winner, called Brook's statements untrue.

DISCOVER RUSSIAN PLOT AT BUCHAREST

Bucharest, Rumania.—(P)—Security arrests have been made in a roundup of alleged espionage agents in which an unofficial report today said many foreigners, including Russians, are believed implicated.

The report said that the affair would probably prove to be the most sensational exposure of intrigue in favor of Russia ever made in the country.

Its discovery apparently was made by the authorities only today and details have not been disclosed although it was committed that the arrests had been effected and that others were to follow.

ORDER PROBE IN STATE ON CHEESE PRICE

Markets Department Trying to Find Out if Prices Have Been Manipulated

Madison.—(P)—An investigation of the activities of the Plymouth Cheese board "to determine whether or not cheese prices have been in accord with actual supply and demand or have been manipulated by the board," was ordered by the state department of agriculture and markets here today.

The trade output from January to September of this year amounted to 190,800,000 pounds as compared to the five year average of 204,000,000 pounds, the department said. This decrease warrants "a complete and thorough study of the price-fixing methods of the board," the commissioners said.

The board has a limited power to determine the price of cheese throughout the United States, meeting each week to determine the price at which cheese will be purchased during the ensuing week, the commissioners said.

A drop of 12 cents per pound in the price of cheese last week was the immediate cause of the department's order for an investigation.

The agriculture commissioners said they had received reports that the price this week will be dropped in addition half-cent per pound, in the face of considerably reduced production over a five-year period. Despite reduced production, consumption in 1929 increased more than 2 per cent as compared to 1928, department officials said. "Twins at the board's quotations on Oct. 3, sold at 17 cents. Seven days later the price dropped to 15.5 cents."

"Further reports have reached the department of agriculture and markets that several of the largest private cheese trading concerns have told the cheese trade to 'go slow.' Commissioner H. M. Knipfel said. "The private cheese buyers have indicated that the price of cheese will be lower. It is very unlikely that these lowered prices ordered by the Plymouth board will have any effect on lowering the price to the consumer as retail prices of cheese are still high in comparison with the prices paid to producers while Wisconsin farmers will lose from $50,000 to $60,000 a week if the price is dropped one cent a pound."

The September average price of twins on the Wisconsin cheese exchange was 17.19 cents as compared with 21.75 cents during the same month for 1929 and a September five-year average price of 21.63 cents the department officials said.

EARTHQUAKES DEMOLISH HOUSES IN CHILE AREAS

Callao, Chile.—(P)—Several houses in this city were destroyed by an earthquake which occurred early this morning. The postoffice was reduced nearly to ruin and several large stores were damaged. Apparently no one was killed.

Valparaiso, Chile.—(P)—The population of Santiago today took refuge in the public parks immediately following a severe earthquake shock at daybreak. Cornices fell off several buildings and walls were cracked. Six women and four men were slightly injured.

WOMAN KILLED, 2 MEN WOUNDED IN SHOOTING

Des Moines, Iowa.—(P)—Mrs. Teresa Benevento, 45, was killed and her husband, Pete, 42, and former husband Ralph Pellegrino 38, were wounded in a shooting affray here last night. Hospital attendants today said that both men would recover.

Football Extra

While last Saturday's games could not be regarded in any way as "practice" games, yet the real battle for sectional and national football recognition gets under way tomorrow. And the Post-Crescent will be ready with its usual Saturday afternoon Football Extra to tell waiting fans all about these games.

Wisconsin will parade its wares before a huge homecoming crowd with the University of Pennsylvania as its opponent. Neither team has been tested defensively as yet but both have shown tremendous offensive strength. The story of that game, hot off the wire, should be of huge interest.

Lawrence tackles Hamline here tomorrow afternoon and the Football Extra will carry a detailed account of this game. Then there will be complete and interesting stories of all the other big games in the Big Ten, in the east and in the south.

Considerable interest here is attached to the conflict between Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech. Notre Dame's coach, Knute Rockne, said last week that he regarded Carnegie as one of the outstanding teams of the country and his Ramblers will be hard put to state off their attack.

The Football Extra, with all these interesting accounts, will be on the streets at 6 o'clock Saturday night.

GRANTS EXTRADITION OF ZUTA KILLING SUSPECTS

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Extradition of Danny Stanton and Edgar Smith to Wisconsin for trial for murder of Jack Zuta, Chicago crime baron, was approved today by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

Zuta was killed by a gang of Chicago gunmen on Aug. 1 while having a party with friends in a Waukegan roadhouse. Stanton was said to have been the leader of the slayers. A few days after the killing, Stanton and Smith were arrested in Chicago. In their car was found a gun from which one of the bullets that killed Zuta was fired, police said. Wisconsin authorities based their plea for extradition entirely upon the finding of the gun in the car.

Snow Or Cold Rain Tonight In Wisconsin

Winter rode into Wisconsin today on the tail of a northwest wind from snow-swept Canada.

Temperatures that tottered around the 50's yesterday crashed down toward the freezing mark. Snow flecked from gray skies in northern Wisconsin and the central and southern part of the state was chilled by a wind that threatened to drive cold rain or snow over the district. The Milwaukee weather bureau predicted cold weather for today and tomorrow.

Kansas City.—(P)—Winter's first threat which blanketed the Cascades and Rockies deep with snow, today had chilled the great plains; the Mississippi valley and was sending a blizzard north across the Texas prairie.

Damage to late crops, danger to stock and even loss of human life was reported from various sections which felt the storm. A searching party yesterday discovered the body of Benedict Umhoefer, 42, Great Falls, Mont., who had perished in a snowstorm.

Blizzards swept along the Judith valley of Montana early today where a minimum temperature of 7 above zero was reported. Temperatures continued to fall in other parts of the state as the snowstorm of yesterday abated.

A heavy snowstorm swept the Wenatchee valley in Washington, said by residents to be the earliest snowfall since 1916. Low clouds over the Cascades threatened a renewal of the storm there.

Snow was reported, too, throughout the Rocky Mountain region, the Dakotas, and Minnesota.

Rapidly falling temperatures in Iowa, Nebraska, and Missouri, brought threats of early frosts. Freezing temperature struck western Kansas late yesterday.

In Oklahoma the temperature had tumbled from 78 degrees at 8 a. m. yesterday to 44 at midnight, with the drop continuing. A cold northerly wind was sweeping across Texas chilling the state which enjoyed temperatures well over 80 yesterday.

MARQUETTE, BADGERS MAY MEET ON GRIDIRON

Milwaukee.—(P)—A football game between the University of Wisconsin and Marquette university, an event long desired was said by the Journal today to be a very definite possibility.

The purpose of the game would be to raise funds for the aid of the unemployed and destitute. Officials of both schools have reserved comment, but the newspaper, interviewing regents, found them favorable.

Apparently the chief obstacle is the fact that the schedule of both Marquette and Wisconsin will not permit a game between the two until the conference season is ended. Under the Big Ten rules, Wisconsin can play no extra games.

However, Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner for the Big Ten, said this rule could be broken with the consent of other members "in view of the purpose of which the game is proposed."

LABOR FAVORS BEER, NOT DRY LAW'S REPEAL

Federation Votes Approval for Policy Modifying Prohibition Law

Boston.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor today reiterated its commitment to a policy in favor of modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent beer and defeated resolutions demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

The prohibition problem was disposed of without the debate that had been anticipated since the opening of the convention. The only delegates to speak on the defeated resolutions were the authors, Arthur J. Beauregard of the Providence Central Federated union, and Edward Flore, of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Beverage Dispensers' International Alliance.

Flore protested that the delegates had been deprived by "the clever maneuvering of the resolutions committee" of an opportunity to discuss the defeated resolutions.

NO DEBATE ON BEER

The first of the three propositions on prohibition to be submitted by the resolutions committee was the executive council's report recommending reaffirmation of its stand in favor of modification of the Volstead act to legalize 2.75 beer. The resolutions committee advocated its adoption and the delegates accepted the report without debate.

The resolution proposed by Beauregard, asking the convention to go on record as favoring repeal of the Volstead act, was reported unfavorably by the resolutions committee.

The resolutions committee also reported unfavorably the resolution sponsored by Flore, urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment and "installation by the states of a method of controlled and restricted distribution which will prevent the exploitation of the liquor traffic for unconscionable profits and not only to do away with prevailing speakeasies and secret drinking, but prevent the reappearance of any unregulated system and the political unquiet which accompanied it."

Flore declared he had hoped the delegates would have an opportunity to discuss the resolutions and charged that "clever maneuvering" by the resolutions committee had "tied our hands."

LACK TRUE TEMPERANCE

The executive council's report, on which the convention's action in regard to prohibition was based, reasserted its conviction that the Volstead act, has not promoted true temperance and that social evils which it said have followed failure of the enforcement of the Volstead act confirmed the position of the federation in favor of modification to permit 2.75 beer.

"The executive council wishes to state clearly," the report said, "that it is in no way demanding the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. . . . We stated in our declaration in 1923, which declaration was endorsed by the delegations in the convention by a practically unanimous vote, that it is our contention that the eighteenth amendment, under a reasonable and proper legislative interpretation, would be beneficial to our country and have the support of a great majority of our people."

"We are of the firm conviction that the Volstead act could be amended without violating the provisions of the eighteenth amendment. Such an amendment would provide for the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 alcohol by weight, and as a result we are of the opinion that temperance would be promoted and the demoralizing and destructive effects which follow the excessive use of intoxicating liquors purchased and manufactured illegally would be reduced to a minimum."

UNCOVER SITE OF OLD INDIAN SETTLEMENT

Brantford, Ont.—(P)—Discovery of the site of an ancient Indian settlement in the Grand River reserve of the Six Nations is reported to the Brantford Historical society by W. A. Wintemmers, of the Dominion archaeological department of Ottawa.

He said indications were the settlement was that of one of the Algonquians, or Neutral, Indian tribes and was some hundreds of years old. The site is about a mile below Chatham, Ontario, home of the Indian poetess, Pauline Johnson. Four distinct ash beds have been uncovered, one above the other, thus indicating, he said, four different encampments with a period of possibly 50 to 100 years between each. One of the ash beds is more than 30 feet wide and about 15 feet long.

Among other things, the site is a pottery, stone, and bone, and the bones of various birds. Numerous burned limestone used as fire places also were found.

THREE KILLED WHEN TRAINS MEET HEADON

Four Others Injured in Collision of Big Four Trains in Cleveland

Cleveland.—(P)—Two mail trains of the Big Four railroad smashed head-on within the city early today, killing three of their crews and injuring four others.

Through some mixup, a westbound train, departing for St. Louis, was on the same track as another train coming up to the station from the divisional yards at Linndale. They collided round a curve near the Fulton road bridge.

Engineer Henry Sprouse of the eastbound train and Fireman Charles Graff, 65, and Conductor Jerry Dickson, 50, of the westbound train were killed. Engineer Frank McCarthy of the westbound train, and Fireman Clarence Sheffield, 35, of the eastbound train, were seriously scalped. Thomas Hennan, 40, fireman on the eastbound train, and William F. Dea, 35, fireman on the westbound train, suffered minor injuries. All were from Cleveland.

Officials of the road declined to comment on the accident and witnesses were unable to explain how it happened. Each locomotive was pulling two mail coaches.

Sprouse and Graff were scalded to death in the escaping steam, while Dickson was pinned between the cab and the tender trying to jump. McCarthy and Sheffield were too seriously injured to tell how the wreck occurred.

Hennan, whose left arm was paralyzed, said the eastbound train was rounding the curve at a slow rate of speed. There was no warning of the crash, he said, and he had only a glimpse of the headlights of the oncoming locomotive before the impact.

"The two locomotives telescoped, then sank back with their noses buried at each other. The heat of the steam rushing from the broken boilers was so intense that rescue workers were forced to work several hours with acetylene torches to free the body of Dickson."

BURGERS GET $20 IN CASH AT FIVE CORNERS

Burglars early Friday morning entered the general store of Jake Schuler at Five Corners and stole $20 in cash, and old rifle and a small quantity of cigarettes and cigars. It is believed the burglary took place about 3 o'clock Friday morning as neighbors reported they heard a car stop near the store building about that time. Entrance was gained by cutting the glass from a rear door. The burglar then crawled through the door without unfastening the door. The door was equipped with an electric warning bell which would have been set off if the door had been opened. Sheriff John Lappen was at Five Corners Friday morning investigating the theft.

EXPelled FOR SMOKING. GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE

Detroit.—(P)—A 14-year-old girl who felt she had been disgraced because she was expelled from school after accusation of smoking cigarettes, committed suicide yesterday by drowning in the Detroit river.

Her mother said the girl, Dorothy Berger, had denied the accusation and had brooded over her dismissal. A week ago, she disappeared from home. Last night, her mother and sister identified her body in the county morgue.

Builders Can Save Money By Getting Started Now

Clinging to his hat as brisk breezes zipped along the streets yesterday, for if he did not, he'd have had to go bareheaded, the scribe noticed that Appleton has not lost the desire to build and remodel.

He took the matter up with those gentlemen who furnish building materials—lumber, millwork, cement, stone, tile, bricks and the like.

Now, the scribe found, the prospective builder or remodeler can economically carry out those ideas which he's been nursing for so long.

Before winter sets in, he can carry out those building details and save money at it.

Lumber has shown a nominal reduction, finished millwork has shown a rise. While materials such as cement, stone, tile and brick have held to their former prices, they, too, are reasonable and can economically be purchased.

One dealer pointed out where another advantage may be gained by planning to build or remodel now. He showed where the builders—the men who put these materials to work—are now in a position to give their best in time and service. Hence, the wise citizen is going to seriously consider the possibilities of building and remodeling right now.

The dealers in lumber and millwork indicated that a probable decrease in price of 15 per cent had been effected in their lines. From the strain which this lowering has placed on large manufacturers and lumber houses, it is evident that prices cannot go lower.

Another reason, the scribe observed, for buying an annual lot of boards—even if only to build a house for Gusto the dog, is—because you've heard about the hungry family who sat down to eat with gusto, haven't you? Gusto barked loudly.

But since there are building operations which are paramount in importance to canine residences, and which can be carried on most economically now, the canny potential builder will put his thoughts into action at once.

In fact, the scribe is already drawing up plans. All he needs now is a vacant lot and a good reason.

Huckins Is Sentenced To Seven Years

Motion for New Trial Denied—Attorneys Announce Intention to Appeal

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—(P)—Elmer S. Huckins of Hancock, Wis., today was sentenced to a maximum of seven years in the state penitentiary at Fort Madison on his conviction on a charge of obtaining money by false pretense from Elwood Royster of Cedar Rapids.

Previously Judge John T. Moffit overruled a motion by Huckins' attorneys for a new trial after sentence was pronounced. The attorneys said they would file an appeal. Judge Moffit set the appeal bond at $15,000, which Huckins furnished. Before his trial recently, Huckins was free on bond of $10,000 Huckins' son, George E. Huckins, now has an appeal before the state supreme court on his conviction last March on a similar charge preferred by Emil Leysen of Springville, Iowa, former major league baseball pitcher. The supreme court is expected to rule soon.

The conviction of both the father and son grew out of the operation of a mysterious business venture which investors testified at the trials paid dividends of 25 and 52 per cent.

HOLD SUSPECT IN WOMAN KIDNAPING

Prisoner in Kansas City Answers Description Given by Heiress

Kansas City.—(P)—Police today were attempting to connect Raymond Rizzo, 41, New York city, with the kidnaping of Mrs. Anna Wilson McKinley, heiress, abducted from her Greenfield, Mo., home and later released.

The prisoner, arrested here late last night, was said by police to answer in detail the description of the kidnaper who forced the 21-year-old expectant mother to drive him away in her car, but released her after they had spent the night lost in the woods.

Fingerprints on a toothbrush in a suitcase cast aside by the kidnaper were looked upon by police as a positive means of establishing whether Rizzo was the kidnaper.

Scars on his hands and face corresponded to those mentioned by Mrs. McKinley in describing the man.

Rizzo denied connection with the crime.

HARD WORK IN STORE FOR LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Joliet, Ill.—(P)—Hard work—the first since their imprisonment six years ago—was the order of the day for Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, slayers of Bobby Franks of Chicago.

Both were directed to report for duty in the state prison shops. Heretofore Loeb has been employed as a messenger. Leopold has been secretary to the prison chaplain. His failure to properly deliver a summons to a prisoner, the chaplain claimed, was the reason for Leopold's transfer to the workshop.

Warden Henry C. Hill said Leopold had been transferred to the state old prison while Loeb had been sent to the new one at Stateville, near here.

"I do not believe they should be under the same roof," he said.

SOME BADLY BURNED

The first victims rescued were suffering serious burns. Some had all their clothes burned off.

J. Holtzman, painter working on the third floor of the eleven story building, and Carl Kaplan, proprietor of a garment shop on the same floor, were hurled to the floor. Recovering from the shock, both rushed to safety, but were unable to rescue victims whose screams pierced the air.

Fire officials said pedestrians as far as four blocks away were hurled to sidewalks. Automobiles parked within a block were bowled over or wrecked.

Duke Wiedemann, owner of an electrical supply store opposite the building, was an eye witness.

"There was absolutely no warning," he said. "Suddenly a terrific explosion occurred. I knew there must be nearly a hundred people in the building and realized many of them must be trapped."

With the fire partly subdued within an hour, firemen made heroic rescue. Two firemen climbed ladders to the eleventh floor, found a young woman, Sarah McDaniel, on the floor in a protected corner. She was brought out, overcome by smoke and bleeding from severe cuts from flying glass.

Police said at least two victims told them of seeing the Mexican employee light the cigarette. This was followed immediately by the explosion.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD TO MEET IN MADISON

Fond du Lac, Wis.—(P)—Madison was chosen the next convention city for the Wisconsin Presbyterian synod and Woman's Synodical Missionary society meeting at the conclusion of their convention here yesterday.

POLICE SEEK FOR SOURCE OF EXPLOSION

Building Had Been Watched for Two Weeks as Strike Progressed

FIND NO FATALITIES

Authorities Inclined to Think Disaster Caused by Cigarette Lighting

Los Angeles.—(P)—District attorney's detectives, after investigating the explosion which injured more than 40 persons in the garment capital building today, said they believed the fifth and sixth floors had been "loaded" with a heavier than air gas in a planned explosion.

Blaney Matthews, chief investigator, Deputy District Attorney Hugh McIsaac, and two fire officials joined in expressing belief the explosion resulted from a well laid and ingenious plot.

They said they had positive evidence a heavier than air gas had been transported to the sixth floor, directly above the Beverly Hills Frocks, Inc., shop, where workers went on strike a month ago.

Los Angeles.—(P)—Between 40 and 50 persons were injured in an explosion which wrecked the Garment Capital building about 7:30 a. m. today. Only one of the victims was reported in a critical condition. With the resultant fire under control an hour and a half later, no bodies had been found in or about the shattered steel and concrete 11 story structure.

By 9 o'clock 40 persons had been taken to the Police Emergency hospital for treatment for cuts and burns. Several others had been taken to other hospitals.

Hyman Schurman, 46, garment manufacturer, was the most seriously hurt of those rescued at that hour. The building had been fairly well searched. He suffered second and third degree burns of the head, face, hands and legs.

A strike of the International Garment Workers union has been in progress for seven weeks and police have been watching the Garment Capital building for two weeks. Captain William J. Hynes of the police "red" squad disclosed following the explosion.

The blast occurred in the rooms of the Beverly Hills Frocks, Inc., on the fifth floor, where police said there had been labor trouble consequent to a strike a month ago.

They expressed the belief the explosion had been caused by an accumulation of gas, but were investigating the manner in which it was set off. They gave considerable credence to reports the gas had been ignited when a Mexican youth, employed in the shop, lit a cigarette.

Sixteen Under Arrest After New York Reds Riot

POLICE CURB OUTBREAKS BY YELLING MOB

Communists Invade City Hall—One Calls Mayor "Grafting Politician"

New York (AP)—Sixteen persons were under arrest today as the result of a series of Communist riots which came to a climax when a party of reds invaded city hall and one of them called Mayor Walker "a grafting Tammany politician and a crook."

An attempt by a group of Communists to present an unemployment petition at a meeting of the board of estimate over which the mayor was presiding precipitated the disturbance in the city hall.

Another clash occurred in city hall park and at Broadway and Barclay, in which two plate glass windows in the Woolworth building were smashed.

A young woman suffered minor injuries when she was trampled by a policeman's horse and dozens suffered bruises and light cuts as police used nightsticks and blackjacks to disperse the yelling, fighting mob.

Among those arrested was Louis J. Engdahl, secretary of the International Labor Defense and Communist candidate for lieutenant governor who attempted to make speeches outside after he had been ejected from the board of estimate meeting.

The fighting in the city hall was precipitated when Sam Nesson, who assumed charge of the petitioners, after Engdahl's ejection, shouted to Mayor Walker:

"You are a lot of grafting Tammany politicians. I would rather be a member of my working class than one of your grafting officials. You are a grafting politician and a crook."

Members of the audience and police surrounded Nesson and his companions and rushed them out of the room and down the stairs pushing them there the meanwhile. Police took a hand and after much disorder in which Nesson was severely beaten, he and two others were arrested. Nesson was charged with inciting a riot and Robert Leless and Milton Stone were held for assault.

Maude White, a negro woman in the delegation, escaped.

The second riot broke out when Communists and sympathizers gathered around Engdahl in front of the Woolworth building where he attempted to speak. Mounted police rode their horses into the crowd several times to break up the crowd.

COURSE TELLS STUDENTS HOW TO USE LIBRARY

In order that all incoming students may know how to use not only the Appleton high school library but any library to the best advantage, a two-weeks course in the study of the library is given annually to sophomores during the first semester of their English course. The course will end Jan. 12. This course will be taken by 385 sophomores.

THREE BRYANS SEEK OFFICES IN COMING NOVEMBER ELECTION

Daughter, Brother and Nephew of Great Commoner Among Entries

Washington (AP)—The perennial candidacy which William Jennings Bryan made a tradition of American politics, is thrice recalled in the gathering of hosts for the November Jousts.

A daughter, a brother and a nephew of the great commoner—all like him in fervor, but divergent on his major premise, prohibition—are before the voters in three widely separated states.

Ruth Bryan Owen, who as a child sat on her father's knee in congress, is making an "annual report" on her second year's work as a member of the house from the Fourth district of Florida. Though she is without opposition, she has spent weeks traversing the territory in a car equipped as a rolling office.

Charles W. Bryan, long associate editor of his brother's publication, the Commoner, is running for the governorship of their home state—Nebraska. Charles is an evangelical dry—as are the two opponents who make his path toward office hazardous.

Silas Bryan, son of Charles and cousin of Ruth, is hopefully campaigning for congress in the Minneapolis district once represented by Walter Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries. This young Bryan, who went to a Minnesota air service training unit during the war and settled in that state after returning native, is making his first bid for public office.

How much of a family affair the Bryans are making of the pre-election campaign is not evident in the capital. Mrs. Owen has carried her inheritance of the family tradition proudly, but she has made no apologies for defections from the father's political principles—when, for instance, she voted for higher tariff schedules. Her friends here declare that her driving speaking, "conferencing" tour of her 500-mile-long strip of Florida coast has been a "triumphal march."

Democratic headquarters here report optimistically on the candidacy of young Silas. Republican Representative W. I. Nolan is strong and there is Ferdinand Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate. But the district, Democrats insist, is to be classed as "doubtful." Republican leaders are equally confident of Nolan's success. Young Bryan, still in his early thirties, has long been an avowed enthusiast, has practiced law and is making his issues on the Republican administration's record.

A local issue that William Jennings Bryan espoused is reported the chief cry of his brother Charles. This is the issue of the state's bankruptcy law, sponsored by the commoner more than 15 years ago and recently ordered submitted to a referendum by a vote of the state legislature. The candidate is telling Nebraskans that when he was governor from 1895 to 1898, this law was effective and that its present disfavor is the fault of administration.

But Gov. Arthur J. Weaver, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, has a different story to tell of the law requiring assessment of all state banks to meet bank failures. An Independent Democrat, R. J. Christie, also is running for the office.

The patriarchal candidate Bryan was the Democratic vice presidential nominee of 1892 and was defeated with John W. Davis. Previously he had served as mayor of Lincoln, Neb. He is getting on toward the edge of the Biblical life-span. From the days of his brother William's glory, in the 90's, until about 10 years ago, Charles Bryan had charge of the paper that carried after the commoner's messages.

LUTHERANS TREK TO APPLETON FOR BIG CELEBRATION

Churches to Celebrate 400th Anniversary of Augsburg Confession

Hundreds of Lutherans from Outagamie and neighboring counties are expected to be in this city Sunday to take part in the celebration at Lawrence Memorial chapel marking the four hundredth anniversary of the Augsburg Confession.

All local Lutheran churches of the Wisconsin Synodical conference will abandon regular services Sunday, and take part in the mass celebration at the chapel.

The Rev. William Sauer, Milwaukee, and Professor C. Biefernicht, president of Dr. Martin Luther college at New Ulm, Minn., will be the principal speakers at the session at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the chapel. A mass choir made up of singers from churches throughout the county will sing anthems.

At the afternoon session at 2:30 Professor E. D. Kowale, president of Northwestern college at Watertown, and the Rev. J. Gauss of Ohio, will be the principal speakers. A mass chorus of 350 voices, composed of children's groups from county churches, will sing.

SERVICES WIDESPREAD Millions of Lutheran church members throughout the world will observe the occasion with special services in commemoration of the reading of the Augsburg Confession before the Diet of Augsburg on June 25, 1530.

In an age which largely demands "Not creed but life" it is noteworthy that an entire church should not only commemorate the publication of its first official confession of faith but should adhere without reservation to a creed four hundred years old, the oldest in force among Christian churches today, according to information received here from the synodical committee in charge of arrangements.

Lutherans believe that a life without a creed is like a ship without a rudder, that conscience can be lost and can be kept unerring only when guided and shaped by definite principles supplied by the scriptures, it was stated.

Since the Lutheran confessions at Augsburg made the Bible the one and only source of Christian faith and confirmed every statement by clear passages of scriptures, Lutherans today maintain that the passing of centuries can not in the least have affected their confession and therefore still acknowledge it unflinchingly and uphold it staunchly.

Scientists Use X-Ray Eyes To See Alloys In Making

Pittsburgh (AP)—How X-ray eyes enable scientists to see iron alloys in the making was explained to the metallurgical advisory board here today.

This board is advisor to the U. S. Bureau of Mines and to Carnegie Institute of Technology, where today's meeting was held.

Two detectors catch the "shiver" which runs through iron-manganese at even slight changes in room temperature. The shiver is the sensitive action of atoms rearranging themselves to produce the well known expansion or contraction.

Dr. F. M. Walters, Jr., of Carnegie Tech, explained that these changes arrange themselves in phases, which have been designated by the Greek letters Epsilon, Gamma Alpha and sometimes others. When such an alteration sweeps through the atoms he said there is a change in several of the properties of the alloy, such as solubility, crystal structure, electrical conductivity, magnetic nature, length and amount of heat it will contain.

Dr. Walters thrust samples of iron-manganese into an electrical furnace, with fine wires attached to the alloy so that the heat produced electrical currents which could be read in terms of some of the changes taking place in the alloy. He read these changes at various temperatures up to about 2000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The readings indicated how strength or other properties of the finished alloy may be altered by peace. Therefore the power of the church has its own commission, to teach the gospel and to administer the sacraments. Let it not break in to the office of another; let it not transfer the kingdoms into the office of another; let it not transfer the kingdom of this world; let it not "brogate" the laws of civil rulers; let it not abolish lawful obediences; let it not interfere with judgements concerning civil ordinances or contracts; let it not prescribe laws to civil rulers concerning the form of the Commonwealth. Legislators in Washington would no doubt be greatly pleased to see these principles find more hearty and more general acceptances.

SQUIRRELS DAMAGE HOME IN EVANSTON

Evanston, Ill. (AP)—The squirrels, Robert D. Sawyer told police, were getting to be such nuisances that he wanted them to do something about it.

Sergeant George Ammon investigated the complaint and found that their gnawing had done damage to the pillars in Sawyer's basement, but he was at a loss to know how he could solve the problem so he called in John Erickson, the redoubtable dog catcher. Erickson said he had never done any squirrel catching and suggested that the easiest way out of it would be to feed them more nuts.

He pointed out, however, that the city had no funds for such purposes, so Sawyer is still pondering the problem.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR CITY SUCTION LINE

Bids on separate units for the new suction line into the city pumping station and filtration plant were opened and contracts awarded by the water commission Thursday afternoon.

Contract for the new low-lift pump was awarded the Allis-Chalmers Co. of Milwaukee. Cast iron pipe and fittings are to be purchased from the United States Pipe and Foundry Co., and four gate valves are to be furnished by the James B. Clow and Sons, Chicago. The contract for a new chlorinator was awarded to the Wallace and Ternan Co. on the low bid of $1,287.

FIRE LOSS DELAYS UTILITIES PROBE

Trade Commission Won't Resume Its Hearings Until Next Month

Washington (AP)—The destruction of records in the recent fire at the Federal Trade commission has so hampered the investigation of power utilities that it will not resume hearings until some time in November.

The commission advised the senate today that a checkup of the damage showed reports prepared for use in hearings on eight companies had been destroyed altogether. These concerns were to have been examined publicly in the near future. The commission also lost exhibits and field reports concerning five other companies. At first it was believed the fire which destroyed the commission building had caused virtually no damage to utility records.

When the hearings are resumed next month, the affairs of one of the larger holding companies, not named in the report to the senate, will be examined. Since the fire at the end of August, the commission has held one series of hearings on affairs of the Carolina Power and Light company and the Minnesota Power and Light company, both operating companies of the Electric Bond and Share group.

Field accountants, the commission said, now are examining the books of fire holding companies and six operating concerns. They have completed studies on one holding company and eight important operating groups. The lost documents are being replaced, but this work was said to be consuming much time as well as being expensive.

DISCUSSES FUTURE OF ARCHITECTURE

Frank Lloyd Wright Says American of Independent Thought Must Lead Way

Madison (AP)—The future of American architecture depends upon the well-to-do American of independent thought because nothing can be expected of American wealth or government for many years, Frank Lloyd Wright, eminent architect, said here yesterday.

The famous architect spoke in music hall, where he attended his first classes at the University of Wisconsin.

He deplored the mechanical and the pseudo-classical or sentimental types of architecture which he said have dominated America for the past generation and said that older civilizations were amused by the senseless copying of styles not fitted for American settings.

While the machine age imposes stricter limitations upon architecture than ever before, these limits should be the architect's opportunity, he said.

CHILD HEALTH PROGRAM ADDS TO LIFE SPAN

Madison (AP)—To the state's program of child health improvement during the past 15 years must be attributed to 31-year increase in the life span. In the opinion of Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer.

A quarter century ago infant mortality took one out of every five while at present only one out of every 17 children died within the first year of life, Dr. Harper said. Adoption of preventative measures by the public, cooperation between parents and the medical profession and a rise of public health nursing throughout the state were the factors that brought the gain in life and health. In the opinion of the state health officer.

Hopes Dim For National Park In Indian Reservation

FIX COST OF PROJECT AT SIX MILLION

Officials Don't Think Congress Would Approprate This Sum

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Corrs.

Washington—The eastern part of the Menominee Indian reservation will probably never be made into a national park, as desired by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton and many organizations in Wisconsin.

It would cost not less than $6,000,000 to compensate the Menominees for the six eastern townships of the reservation, the part which it was proposed to make into a park.

This estimate is made by Indian bureau officials and takes into consideration the value of the land, the timber and the water power in this portion of the reservation. The Menominees receive annual income from the timber and they hope to receive income from the water power resources at some time.

The bill introduced by Rep. Schneider authorizing a survey to determine the desirability of acquiring the area from the Indians for a park specified that the Secretary of the Interior should appraise the individual interests of members of the tribe as to land improvements and buildings on a reproduction basis, and their joint interests in land, timber, water power potentialities, industrial development and buildings.

It further stipulated that "it be clearly understood that the lands, rights or property shall be taken from the Menominee Tribe or individual members thereof for such park purposes without adequate compensation."

SIX MILLION COMPENSATION
The bureau estimates that "adequate compensation" will be at least $6,000,000. It is believed that Congress would not consider paying $6,000,000 to buy property for a national park. National parks are usually created out of public lands, or out of land owned by local interests, or state, county, or municipal governments.

The movement to make a national park of this part of the reservation was stimulated by the threat of five power dams on the Wolf river in the reservation. The Wisconsin Power and Light company holds a preliminary permit for the development of this power project, which expires next Feb. 10, having been renewed one year. The company, an Insull subsidiary, has not yet applied for a license.

These dams would be built, if the license is issued, at Keshena Falls, Big Eddy Falls, Smoky Falls, The Dalles, and Sullivan Rapids.

The six eastern townships of the reservation include some of the most beautiful scenery in Wisconsin. The Wolf river winds through it, forming the Dells of the Wolf where the river works through ledges of stone and granite, making a canyon about 50 feet deep and 10 miles long. There are fifty lakes, two rivers, fine stand of virgin white pine and many fine trout streams.

HOUSE PASSED BILL
The Schneider bill was passed by the House of Representatives but was not acted upon by the Senate during the last session of Congress.

It remains before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, of which Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., is a member, for consideration during the next session.

Nevertheless, Harlan P. Kelsey, an authority on national parks, made a preliminary survey of the Menominee reservation in August for the National Park Service and is reported to be favorable to the park purposes. At least, he considers this region excellent for park purposes. Mr. Kelsey is not a member of the park service, but an outside collaborator who as a member of the Southern Wisconsin Parks commission recommended to the government the creation of the Shenandoah national park and the Great Smoky national park.

Apparently both the National Park Service and the Bureau of Indian Affairs have acted exactly as if the Schneider bill had already been passed and the park service has made the preliminary studies which it made of other proposed national parks, such as the Apostle Islands and the Upper Mississippi region, concerning both of which bills were passed by Congress and approved by the President.

MILWAUKEE BREWERIES ALL SET FOR REAL BEER

Milwaukee—(P)—Purchase of new bottling equipment in the belief that manufacture of real beer soon will be permitted, is being made by the Fred Miller Brewing Co. It was said today by W. H. Kraft, manager. "We would not purchase if we did not feel confident that there will be some modification to permit the making and sale of 2.75 beer," Kraft said.

Fred Pabst, Sr., president of the Pabst corporation, Wednesday told how his company was spending around $800,000 for machinery and grain stores in the hope that 2.75 beer will be legalized.

All the breweries in the city, a survey by newspapers showed, are ready to turn out beer at a moment's notice. To make near beer, real beer must first be brewed and then the surplus alcohol is drawn off.

ALLEN ARTHUR TO LEAD LAWRENCE PEP BAND

When the Lawrence college pep band makes its first appearance tomorrow at the Lawrence-Hamline game it will be led by Allen Arthur. He was selected as drum major from a group of contestants. John Paul Jones and Franklin Elise, co-directors of the band, announced their choice after a series of tryouts. Although the band will not appear in the new uniforms, it will not lack the performance characteristic of college pep bands. For marching practices and band rehearsals have been held regularly during the last two weeks.

Between halves the initial appearance of the band will be the formation of an "H" for Hamline and "L" for Lawrence. Members of the student body and faculty have reacted for some time the need for a college pep band. Prof. E. C. Moore of the conservatory has directed the organization and practice sessions.

CALL MEETING TO TALK ABOUT VALLEY DROUGHT

Mayor John Goodland Jr. has been invited to attend a dinner meeting of mayors and village presidents of cities along Lake Winnebago and the lower Fox river at Hotel Kaukauna some evening this month. Because of the extreme drought of the past summer cities in this section have suffered much from low water and the meeting is being called to present the matter to the United States Engineering department.

Oconomowoc—(P)—John D. Dittmer, 28, Is a sports goods merchant, today awaited trial on charges of arson as result of a fire which destroyed a downtown building here. Police testified they believed Dittmer responsible for an electrical contrivance which they said started the fire.

UNSKILLED LABOR ENTERS PERIOD OF SEASONAL CHANGE

Harvest Work, Construction Operations Near End for Year

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Washington—(CPA)—Labor—that is, unskilled labor—is in a period of change or will be within a few weeks. Many workers are moving from one section to another and will continue to do so until the turn of the year.

Agricultural work still is occupying laborers in the northwest harvesting fields and the harvesting of sugar beets in the intermountain west and the slicing operations of the beet sugar factories will keep thousands of workers engaged for some weeks to come, according to department of labor reports.

A large army of men is employed on road construction and will continue to do work of this kind in the more moderate climates all winter. But it will not be long now until cold and storms check such operations in the north. The type of construction work now most active is giving a fine volume of employment to both skilled and unskilled labor but the municipal, government and state projects, as well as those of the public utility companies, favor semi-skilled men rather than the highly trained artisans employed on home construction. The volume of building for commercial and private purposes is showing little change.

LAKE WORKERS BUSY

The number of workers on the Great Lakes and the inland waterways is still high and will continue so up to the close of navigation, when these workers will come into the cities and seek employment in other lines which are somewhat ill-prepared to absorb them. The seasonal requirements but there are already many thousands of excess workers among the miners. The metal mines give no indication of abandoning their policy of restricting production.

The shoe factories are making a fine showing, according to the labor department, with some working overtime, but there is still a heavy surplus of textile workers. The iron and steel industry is holding its own in the matter of employment but is still affected by the dullness in the automobile trade.

The last month, according to the bureau of labor statistics, showed a seasonal gain of 1 per cent in employment over the previous month and a gain of 1.4 per cent in payroll totals. Some of the gain was due to the canning or preserving industry, which was extremely active. The most significant increase, however, was that of 7.5 percent in the volume of retail trade. This was recorded despite the fact that prices now are lower than they were a month ago. Per capita savings among manufacturing workers were .8 per cent higher than for September, 1929.

MORE EFFICIENT WORKERS

There is no doubt that workers are more efficient and that working conditions are more adapted for efficient work than they have ever been in the history of the nation. More work is being obtained per worker because the latter works in better light, better air and under generally better conditions. This is illustrated by the plan for the first windowless factory in the United States, to be erected at Fitchburg, Mass., for the Simmons Saw & Steel company. The structure will have neither windows nor skylights. It will be lighted, heated, ventilated and refrigerated by modern methods and the walls will be noise-absorbing. The machines will be orange colored to help avoid accidents and raise visibility, while walls and ceilings will be blue, green and white.

Illumination will be by hundreds of 1,000-watt lights providing uniform light density. All heavy machines will be seated on cork mats to reduce noise. It is estimated by scientists that the building will increase worker efficiency 33 per cent.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR CHURCH DEDICATION

BY W. F. WINSEY

Isaiah's preparations have been completed for the dedication of St. Sebastian church here Sunday by the parish priest and bishop. The Rev. A. N. Belle. The dedication ceremonies will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. Paul P. Rhode, Bishop of the Green Bay diocese, assisted by the priests of the surrounding parishes and in presence of the St. Sebastian congregation. Confirmation is to follow the dedication ceremonies. Lunches will be served at stands in the basement of the church.

The new church is an attractive, commodious, serviceable building, erected the past summer on the site of the old church destroyed by fire last December. It is a monument to the public spirit and the religious zeal of the congregation and the priest that built it. It is large enough and durable enough to serve the people of the congregation and their descendants for years to come.

The building committee consists of Nick Watney, chairman, Rev. A. N. Belle, Ted Vandergaast, Andrew Eisenreich and Henry Schmidt.

BUILDING PERMITS

One building permit was issued Thursday by John N. Weiland, building inspector. It was granted to Fred Zuchlik, 1500 N. Superior-st., one car garage, cost $100.

Raising a tariff wall on flour is urged in a bill presented to the Philippine government.

YACHT CLUB PREPARES FOR ARMISTICE PARTY

The annual ball of the Appleton Yacht club will be held at Terrace Gardens on the evening of Nov. 11, Armistice Day, according to tentative plans. The committee on arrangements is composed of Leo Schroeder, chairman, Herbert Brock and Carl Kempf.

19 RURAL TEACHERS AT 2ND CONFERENCE

Mentors Discuss Lesson Assignment and Study Procedure Improvement

Nineteen rural school teachers attended the teachers' conference Thursday at the Stephenville school, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, who was in charge. This number represented every school in the town of Ellington, Maine and Bovina. The teachers discussed lesson assignments and how to improve study procedure. This was the second meeting of its kind this week. ## ORDER CRUISER TO BRAZILIAN WATERS

Will Remove Americans Who Desire to Leave Revolted Region

Washington—(P)—The American cruiser Pensacola was ordered to Brazilian waters today as a precautionary measure for the removal of any Americans who might desire to leave.

The cruiser's orders are to stop at Para, Pernambuco and Bahia. Secretary Stimson, announcing the order for the cruiser to proceed from Trinidad, said further directions would be issued later.

The secretary said requests either direct to the department or through the American consul had been received of Americans desiring to leave Brazil.

American consular officials have advised the department, however, that the presence of the cruiser in the vicinity of Brazilian ports would serve as a precautionary measure. The commander of the vessel has been empowered to take off any Americans who might desire to leave.

Brazilian federal and revolutionary authorities today continued to make conflicting claims regarding the progress of the revolt in Brazil.

The federalists claimed to have repulsed an attack on the city of Itare, important rail-head on a line leading to the rebel goal of Sao Paulo city, taking 400 prisoners.

Revolutionary officials at Porto Alegre announced capture of the town by insurgents under General Miguel Costa, who declared that the federalists had been demoralized in half a dozen encounters thus far and should give up the war. He predicted that the capture of Sao Paulo, leading to an attack on Rio de Janeiro, was not far off.

The rebels also claimed the defection of two federal infantry regiments in the state of Minas Gerais, while federal communiques asserted government troops were advancing on "all fronts" in the same state.

Capture of Aracaju, capital of the state of Sergipe in the north, was also reported today by the revolutionists, who now are planning a southward attack upon the state of Bahia and then on to the federal capital.

Since Oscar J. Among those who wanted copies are John W. Reynolds, Green Bay, attorney general and candidate for reelection.

Mr. Schmlege's bill would make it illegal for any domestic or foreign corporation to hold more than 10 per cent of the stock of any bank; it would force corporations to list with the state all bank holdings; it would prohibit the placing of state public funds in any bank owned or controlled by a holding company; and it would prohibit state banks from counting as part of their reserve fund any money deposited with a bank controlled by a holding company.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES

A jury in circuit court at Oshkosh, Wis., returned a verdict, after nearly five hours of deliberation, in the suit brought by Mrs. Ivy Jensen, Menasha, against the Soo Line railroad company. Mrs. Jensen sought damages of $10,000 but the jury declared that neither the plaintiff nor the defendant were guilty of negligence in the accident which resulted in the suit. The jury said that if Mrs. Jensen was entitled to recover damages that a reasonable compensation would be $1,200.

Mrs. Jensen was injured at Forest Park, Ill., on Oct. 27, 1929, when a railroad grade crossing gate struck her on the head. The jury held that neither the railroad company nor Mrs. Jensen were negligent and it is now a question whether Mrs. Jensen can recover.

Attorneys for both sides are to appear before Judge Beglinger at Oshkosh Saturday morning to make the usual motions for a verdict and for dismissal. There is a likelihood that the case will be appealed to the supreme court.

Percentage of Increase of Marriages in State Greater Than for U. S.

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington — Maybe the number of marriages and divorces does not reveal a thing about marital happiness.

There were more marriages for every divorce in Wisconsin than in the country as a whole and than any of its neighboring states except Minnesota.

The percentage increase in the number of marriages was higher in Wisconsin than in the country as a whole and than any in any neighboring state.

Wisconsin was the only state in its general vicinity in which the number of divorces decreased in 1929 as compared with 1928, and in the country as a whole an increased number of couples told their troubles to the courts.

There were fewer divorces per 1,000 persons in Wisconsin than in any neighboring state and than in the United States.

Last year there were 17,983 marriages performed in Wisconsin as against 15,937 in 1928, an increase of 12.3 per cent.

In the country as a whole, the increase was only 4.2 per cent—less than a third of Wisconsin's percentage increase. In neighboring states the percentage increase in the number of marriages in 1929 as compared with 1928 was: Illinois, 5.5 per cent; Minnesota, 3.7 per cent; Iowa, 6.8 per cent; and in Michigan there was a decrease of 1.3 per cent in the number of marriages.

Comparing the number of marriages with the population, there were 6.2 marriages for every thousand persons in Wisconsin in 1929 as against 5.5 in 1928. In the United States as a whole, however, there were 10.1 marriages per thousand persons, and in neighboring states the numbers of marriages per thousand population in 1929 were: Michigan, 7.7; Minnesota, 9.4; Illinois, 11.2; Iowa, 8.9. Although other states had more marriages per thousand persons, the proportion increased more in Wisconsin than in the neighboring states.

There were 6.7 marriages performed for every divorce granted in Wisconsin last year, while in the country as a whole there were only 6.1 marriages for every divorce. In adjacent states the numbers of marriages per divorce in 1929 were: Michigan, 3.1; Minnesota, 8.4; Iowa, 5.1; Illinois, 5.3.

Last year 2,671 divorces were granted in Wisconsin as against 2,673 in 1928, a decrease of one-tenth of one per cent, while the divorces granted in the country as a whole increased 2.8 per cent. In Michigan the divorces increased 13.8 per cent; in Minnesota, one-half of one per cent; in Iowa, 8 per cent; in Illinois, two-fifths of one per cent.

There were only 0.92 divorces per thousand persons in Wisconsin in 1929 as against 0.93 in 1928. In the country as a whole, there were 1.66 divorces per thousand persons in 1929 and 1.64 in 1928.

In neighboring states the number of divorces per thousand persons in 1929 was: Minnesota, 1.12; Iowa, 1.79; Michigan, 2.55; Illinois, 2.09. Thus Wisconsin was the only state in the vicinity in which there was less than one divorce for every thousand persons.

Sixty marriages were annulled in Wisconsin in 1929 and 67 in 1928.

FILE BRIEF CONCERNING OLEO AND BUTTER RATES

BY RUBY A. BLACK

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Of interest to Wisconsin's dairymen is a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning the effect of the Eastern Class Rate Investigation on the relationship between oleomargarine and butter rates.

Recently a number of carriers filed a brief suggesting the disruption of the present relationship of oleomargarine and butter rates, and now the John F. Jelke company of Chicago has filed an answer to this brief.

The Jelke company asserts that rates on oleomargarine in official territory "should be maintained on a basis no higher than that contemporaneously applicable to butter." It also states that, since both carriers and the Interstate Commerce Commission have in the past, formally recognized this similarity of rating on butter and oleomargarine, it should not be necessary for manufacturers and shippers of oleomargarine to "enter into formal litigation every time rates on one or the other of these commodities are changed, to preserve the relationship."

The carriers had suggested that anyone objecting to a change in the relationship should file intervening and protesting petitions with the commission.

The effective date of the order in the Eastern Class Rate Investigation has been advanced from November 1, 1930 to February 1, 1931.

ARRANGE FOR 2 FARM MEETINGS

State Expert on Cattle Diseases to Discuss Contagious Abortion

Two of the five meetings to be held throughout the county next week with Dr. V. S. Larson, expert on cattle diseases with the state department of agriculture, as the principal speaker, have been arranged by Gus Sell, county agent. One meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon at the town hall in the town of Maine and another will be held Wednesday evening at the village hall in Bear Creek. Other meetings are to be arranged for Monday and Thursday. Monday afternoon Dr. Larson will meet at Mr. Sell's office with the veterinarians of the county.

Dr. Larson will discuss the latest measures for control of contagious abortion in cattle. Mr. Sell said. He pointed out that this disease is undoubtedly causing more loss to Outagamie-co farmers than tuberculosis ever did. There is no remedy, preventative or cure for abortion, Mr. Sell points out, but certain sanitary practices have been found which help control the disease. Dr. Larson will discuss these measures.

HEAVY BAIL FOR SEVEN SEIZED BY DRY RAIDERS

Milwaukee—(P)—The heaviest bail ever required in the Eastern Wisconsin federal court for violators of prohibition laws was demanded Thursday of seven men arrested Tuesday in a raid on a new still at Kewaskum, Wis., when each was required to put up $5,000 escape insurance.

Five of the men are Chicagoans. Two are from Milwaukee. Court Commissioner Jenkins, who assessed the bail, said "we are compelled to take notice that illicit liquor operations are financed more and more by men with enough money not to worry over loss of a few hundred dollars of bail money, if small bails were set in this case, as pointed out by the government, reappearance of the defendants would not be insured."

PLAN EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER AT ZACHOW

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—The post office department has asked the Civil Service commission to hold an examination of applicants for the postmaster vacancy at Zachow, Shawano-co, Wis.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Postmaster August H. Sack. He is continuing to hold office until his successor is appointed.

The post office is a fourth-class office. The exact date and location of the examination will be announced later.

THINK WOUNDED BANKER WAS SHOT BY ROBBERS

Enid, Okla.—(P)—George Taft, vice president of the Farmers State bank of Garber, was found Wednesday night at the roadside near his parked automobile with two bullet wounds in his body. Officers who brought the unconscious man to a hospital here expressed belief he was the victim of robbers.

Wisconsin Boy is Strongest

"MY son, Charles, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. Charles Davis, 122 Fifth St., Milwaukee.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I give California Fig Syrup most of the credit for this. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup for all of Charles' upsets and colds."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Fine Fiction Staff Writes for Milwaukee Journal

Great Names Head List of Leading Literary Lights

What makes a good story?

To some its romance, tender and sweet. To some it's adventure, sparkling with vivid action. To others it's gay humor, radiating cleverness and character. It takes variety to please everyone.

The selections of fiction for The Milwaukee Journal is a problem of real proportions. To those who like romance, romance must be served. For those who thrill with the love of the adventure, such stories must be supplied. For those who have a funny bone, humor deserves its rightful position.

The policy of The Journal has always been to provide a complete selection of fine fiction for its readers. Selecting the finest short stories and serials, by America's greatest authors, The Journal has assembled as its contributors the greatest staff of fiction writers in the world.

Who has not heard of Edna Ferber? Thousands read her SO BIG and SHOWBOAT. Thousands more are reading CIMARRON, now running in the daily and Sunday Journal. Then there is Kathleen Norris, most popular of all America's authoresses, who has written a series of 12 short stories now appearing every Sunday.

Greatest Writers in World
The list is long and noteworthy. P. C. Wren, Rafael Sabatini, Gordon Young and Ira Kenyon. Sax Rohmer, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Thornton Wilder, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Margaret Culkin Banning, Sam Hellman, Frank Adams and J. S. Fletcher are others. Few newspapers everywhere can claim such an eminent list of fiction contributors.

A check with book stores reveals that during September and October The Journal published or will publish novels with a total cash value of more than $13. This is practically the cost of a year's subscription to the daily and Sunday Journal.

People who like GOOD fiction look to The Milwaukee Journal for their reading. In this newspaper they find romance, humor, adventure... an interesting story to satisfy their own individual requirements.

Puzzles Prove Popular With Badger Readers

Checks of from $1 to $15 have been sent to more than 100 Wisconsin people who won prizes in the first seven events of the great Scrambled Letters Contest which is now being conducted in The Milwaukee Journal.

Moreover, these people and thousands of other contestants have had fun galore in trying to solve The Journal's puzzles correctly.

The idea of the contest is to unscramble a scrambled letter of the alphabet and because it takes quite a bit of maneuvering to put the pieces together the contest holds a fascination for everyone from little Jeromes to grandmas.

The contest has its difficult moments... that's what makes it fun... and yet you'll find it much easier than unshelling the proverbial scrambled egg or a cat tangled skein of yarn... and much more profitable, because there is the opportunity of winning one of the $31 cash prizes.

There are 19 more events, with cash awards for every letter puzzle. Each week three contest events are conducted, two appearing in the daily paper and one every Sunday. Plan to start sending entries regularly to The Milwaukee Journal Scrambled Letters Contest. You'll enjoy it... and it may mean an extra $10 or $15 to apply against Christmas shopping bills.

Thurston, Master Magician, Tells of Many Thrilling Experiences

"Fire! The theater is burning!" The crowd gasped, scrambled madly. Panic was imminent. Then from the stage a stentorian voice boomed commandingly.

"Ladies and gentlemen! Witness the greatest feat of the age. The fire miracle. Never before attempted. I assure you there is no danger."

There was a hush. The burning decorations continued to crackle. There was little danger of the fire spreading. But the crowd must be calmed. The scramble for exits subsided. Curiosity mingled with doubt on upturned faces. The orchestra, struck up a lively tune.

Ten minutes of suspense. Then it was all over, the only remaining traces of the fire a few blackened bits of burning. The audience went wild... now, however, with gladness, relief, admiration. Plaudits rang out for the hero of the hour, Howard Thurston, the great master magician. A perilous situation, possible disaster, was averted by the

Secret Service Men Face Grim Dangers, Death

Capt. George Harris Tells of Daring, Risky Missions

Thrilling, dangerous, risky is the life of a secret service operative. These intrepid men face desperate rigors... sometimes death... playing a game of wits with desperate, clever criminals. Their perilous ventures take them into haunts not known to average men. The requisites are strenuous. Bravery, quick-thinking are first qualifications. Acting ability, knowledge of criminal habits stand next in importance.

An intensely interesting series of true crime stories will appear in The

During the war he was assigned to many difficult details as a member of President Wilson's secret service squad. Later he was the operative who successfully uncovered several gigantic swindling plots, which saved the American public hundreds of thousands of dollars. He has trailed forgers, counterfeiters, confidence men, escaped convicts... each time ferreting out the pub-

Journal Is Only Wisconsin Paper to Provide Roto

The Rotogravure section of The Sunday Milwaukee Journal enjoys an ever increasing popularity among Wisconsin people. The only rotogravure section published by a Wisconsin newspaper, it is filled with page after page of thrilling action pictures and those of prominent people, important events and places.

Two or more pages printed in color are also a regular part of this fine section. Reproductions of famous paintings, actual color photographs of people and places are brought to Journal readers to enjoy.

Only a few of America's largest and finest newspapers find it possible to publish a color section. It is a feature that has an important part in making The Journal Wisconsin's favorite paper.

Among the many fine color pictures to be found in this section will be a series of portraits of former chief justices of Wisconsin. Painted in oil and reproduced in natural color, they will make an interesting series worthwhile to clip and save.

lic enemies and bringing them to justice.

You will enjoy reading about these baffling crimes... how some of them were solved by scientific methods and others by a series of fortunate circumstances. Next Sunday read how Capt. Harris and his fellow operatives uncovered a counterfeiters' nest in northern Wisconsin... the notorious Donners-tog brothers case. Every step in the case is clearly outlined and it is told in a swift moving, vastly interesting style. Be sure to read Capt. Harris' first secret service story next Sunday, Oct. 19, in The Sunday Milwaukee Journal Magazine section.

Many other unusual features in next Sunday's Milwaukee Journal magazine section extend a friendly invitation for real reading pleasure. A fantastic but true story about prehistoric times in the southwestern part of America. An article on exploring the world's "blind spots." "Moose" Kenyon's sparkling new novel of pioneer lore, "Isle of the Devil"... a screamingly funny article by Ellis Parker Butler... these are some of the features presented for your entertainment next Sunday in The Sunday Journal Magazine section.

Two Newcomers Bring New Fun to Comic Pages

Readers of The Milwaukee Journal may now prepare to have their funny bones tickled in a slightly more intense manner. Welcomed to Journal comics last month were two attractive newcomers. Perhaps by this time you've made Connie's acquaintance in The Sunday Milwaukee Journal. If you haven't, do. For this vivacious young modern can do much to start you off on Sunday morning with a complacency to meet even the Sunday afternoon calling emergency. Connie is richly endowed with the essence of good humor, and her wiles and whims prove pleasant and entertaining.

Connie is the breezy, blithe creation of inimitable Frank Godwin, master of the pen and brush. You'll fall in love with Connie... with her golden good looks; her cool, canny cleverness; her bizarre way of managing many suitors. Meet Connie this week. Cam O'Flage is not exactly a newcomer. She has been cavorting through the pages of The Sunday Milwaukee Journal comic section for some time. Now, however, the peppy comic strip featuring Cam, the beautiful typist, makes its bow in the daily Journal. "Somebody's Steno" now appears in the daily and Sunday Milwaukee Journal for the entertainment of Journal readers. Cam is well known for her bright, sparkling wit, her adroitness in managing Boss Smithers, guiding the destinies of the Smithers Nut & Bolt Co. Get to know this delightful young business woman. You'll find her sprightly capers a daily tonic of laughs. Read "Somebody's Steno" every day and Sunday.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

AFTER that, Sarah seemed to watch life from a great distance, when she knew anything about it at all.

Once in a lucid interval she understood that Ted was asking about her. She knew that no one could come in. But she thought it would be rather sporting to wish him luck and love. Since she was going to die anyway . . . Hadn't she made her will? And nurses didn't let people who were semi-conscious make wills unless they knew that they were needed . . . She might as well enjoy one more scene before the curtain swung down.

She was going to leave everything. She was just a spectator now. A ghost sitting on a fence watching the parade. The funeral parade. She turned her head whose black curls spread out in dusky shadows against the pure white pillow. She opened her dark eyes and motioned to the nurse. She was stronger suddenly. The sense of the dramatic was reacting to this last curtain call, she thought, without knowing that she did.

Ted came in, hesitatingly. "You didn't expect to be admitted, did you, Ted?" she asked. "Usually a corpse has to be exclusive, wait for the undertaker. I just wanted to wish you happiness and hope that you have orange juice and oatmeal for breakfast every morning. Joan's sweet. Tell her what I said."

"I don't understand . . ." Ted began.

Sarah laughed. "My mind isn't wandering. I'm taking my final breath . . . and it hurts like blazes, too . . . to congratulate you, you know, wedding bells, then a funeral dirge. That's life. Can't you say thank you? It's expected!"

"I'm not engaged!" The words came out in such sudden surprise that for a second Sarah hesitated. Then she remembered that nothing mattered now. She was a ghost, sitting on a fence, as the parade went by . . .

"Of course you are." Her voice was so light a breeze could have blown it away. "And I'm so very, very glad. And now, I need some sleep. I never died before so I don't just exactly know how it's done."

She was still smiling as he left the room.

Then her smile faded gradually, and her breath came gaspingly. It had taken all her strength to talk like that . . . she didn't even know what she had said . . . Oh, yes, she had congratulated him . . . the blackness was closing in . . . it was like a closet where she had been locked for some punishment when she was very small. In a minute somebody would turn the key . . . After that she didn't know anything.

"She's out of her head," Ted told Sue. "But she's laughing. She wants me to . . ." Then he stopped.

"I heard her," Sue answered. "Joan's nice . . . I don't know her very well. But Sarah and I like her."

hair, Sarah dyed her hair red once to pose as a waitress. Remember?"

"But Sue, she's dying, maybe! And you talk about her hair!" Ted's voice was curiously surprising.

"Of course. Why not?" Sue laughed. "Life's made up of hair and flowers and a few other things." Sue had caught the note in Sarah's voice as she listened through the door. She understood that Sarah wanted to die early . . . if she died. And that she would be helping her if she caught the gay red ball which seemed so audacious and tossed it up before anyone else could lift it and see how heavy it was.

"My God, why don't someone do something?" There was terror in Ted's voice now.

Our Children By Angelo Patri

LABELS AND MORE LABELS
The easiest thing in the world, and one of the most popular, is labelling things. We have a delight in finding the right name for things, for conditions, for all troublesome questions. Once having named the thing we have a feeling of having placed our finger on the seat of the trouble and accomplished much.
We haven't accomplished anything but the feeling of satisfaction. And that quickly vanishes the moment that difficulty rises. And it will. A label never settles anything.
When a child lags behind somebody emphatically calls him "Lazy," and expects something to happen. Nothing happens. The truth of the matter is that no healthy child is lazy. When you say he is lazy you are labelling a symptom of trouble. You have not found the cause of the trouble and so you have effected no cure.
And when a child is not able to hold his weary mind on a task somebody calls him "Inattentive." Well, he is. But you knew that before you said it. Saying it changed nothing. WHY is he inattentive? Is the lesson graded for his power? Is it presented so that he can get the idea? Does it offer him any mental exercise or satisfaction? Is the child well? How do you know? You will have to answer all these questions and more, if you want to help the inattentive child. You will have to go farther than the label.
Now and then we have the child whose every movement is heavy, whose every thought seems to be weighted down. Slow to hear, slow to comprehend after he has heard, slow to put into execution. A dull, slow child. What now? Put him in a class of like-minded children and tell the teacher to bring them all up to grade? Label them Dull and hope for the best?
The best won't happen. Those children have no chance in the graded class with the usual curriculum. There is a cause for their dullness. Seek it first before you consider their case closed. It is hard enough to be different from one's mates but it is harder still to be labelled and shelved so much merchandise.
Children cannot be handled that way. Each child is an individual of certain definite qualities. To analyze him is of no good to him, nor to you, unless the analysis is to be used as a basis for future instruction, future adjustment of school and child.
It is right to know what kind of child you have, but having found him what then? Better do something to help him if you can. One thing we can do. We can give the children who are different a different course of study. We can try with might and main to develop whatever quality they have so that they may take some share in the normal life of the community.
And one thing is certain. If we do not train teachers for these special children we will have to build reformatories and jails to hold them by and by. That is scarcely fair. If a school will make a jail or a reformatory unnecessary, why not build a school? If a teacher can displace a jailer why not train the teacher?
Labels are not enough. We must follow up the retail to which the label points or we are doing less than our plain duty.

WE WOMEN

PEACOCKS AND VANITY
The peacock is a symbol of pride and vanity.
We are all familiar with the phrase, "as proud as a peacock." But pity, do not envy, the peacock.
Nature gave the peacock a beautiful gown of gorgeous feathers. Nature was kind to the peacock. The peacock, on the other hand, is unkind to itself. It has brought itself into disrepute. It does nothing but strut. It has a beautiful gown of gorgeous feathers—but that's all.
There are a number of women who are like peacocks. We consciously and offensively try to capitalize a gift which it were better for us to close our eyes to.
Beauty is skin deep. It isn't really important or vital, fundamentally. The beauty of a peacock isn't even skin deep. Strip it of its feathers and it becomes less attractive than a plucked chicken. As a food it is unfit. There are some things to be said for a well-cooked chicken even if it does not appear so attractive in real life as a peacock.
Fine feathers do not make fine birds. The peacock is beautiful but it is also vulgar. It is vain and vanity is not a virtue. Neither is beauty.
Clothes do not make the man. Feathers do not make the bird or woman.
The peacock teaches us a lesson, or at least holds a warning out to us. Pride cometh before a fall. Watch your step. Do not be vain or strut in a sense of false pride. The fall will come if you do.
I have lately discussed goldfish and canaries and considered them in relation with women. A canary sings though confined to a tiny cage, which passes for its home and world. The goldfish is not so fortunate. It cannot sing, but it does make the best of it—and doesn't strut. It is not vain. It, too, is beautiful; but the corollary is also true of the goldfish. Fine feathers do not make the fish.
And yet we all like to look at peacocks, canaries and goldfish. That is why we make household ornaments and pet of canaries and goldfish.
Learn a lesson from the peacock. It is not held in high esteem because its struts—it is vain.
Women who are as proud and as beautiful as peacocks are not held in high esteem for the same reason.
If you wish help with your problems, write to the author.

BROTHERS FACE TRIAL FOR FIRING FORESTS
Madison—(P)—Sidney Delaney and William Delaney, brothers of Tomah, Wis., will go on trial this fall on a charge of setting forest fires, the conservation commission said Thursday.
The Delaneys were arrested Sept. 24 and accused of setting fires west of Mather. This was during the period of fires in Wood, Jackson and Juneau cos.
Justice Bartels bound the men over to circuit court for trial after preliminary hearing at Tomah yesterday. They furnished $500 bond to gain their release.
FAVOR MODIFICATION OF CONSENT DECREE
Washington—(P)—Modification of the Packer's consent decree to permit meat packers to engage in retail distribution was said Thursday by Chairman Legge to be favored by every member of the farm board.
While the board has not taken action, Legge said the members were unanimously in favor of a modification of the decree. Any restriction of the market was not helpful, he added.
The packers are now seeking a modification of the decree in the local courts.
FREEDOM LAND TO BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION
A parcel of land in the town of Freedom will be sold at public auction on Nov. 3 at the courthouse by Sheriff John Lappen to satisfy a mortgage foreclosure judgment granted by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court on Sept. 7, 1929. The judge ordered sale of the property on Sept. 13. The land is owned by Theodore Pennington, et al, and the mortgage is held by Louis Lang, et al.

Boil about one pint of milk with an onion and a bay leaf for fifteen minutes; then remove the bay leaf, and pour the boiling milk over a heaping breakfast cupful of bread crumbs. Chop fine one pound of raw veal and pound it in a mortar, mixing with it a small quantity of cold, cooked fat; then mix in the soaked crumbs, and pass the mixture through a coarse sieve. Divide it into equal portions, which mould into rolls with flour.
Procure as many pieces of cloth as there are rolls, wring them out in boiling water, flour them, tie a roll in each, place them in a sauce pan of boiling water, and boil from ten to fifteen minutes.
When cooked, drain the rolls, remove the cloths, place them on a hot dish, pour some well-flavored brown sauce around them, and serve.
Orange Puffs
Grate the rind of three oranges and strain their juice; put the rinds into a mortar with one pound of sugar and about three ounces of butter and pound them into a smooth paste, then mix in the strained juice. Roll the paste out on a marble slab and cut into rounds with a tin cutter. Lay them a short distance from each other on baking sheets over which has been spread a sheet of white paper and bake in a moderate oven.
When done, pile the puffs on a dish over which has been spread a folded napkin or an ornamental dish-paper, dust them over with sugar, and serve.

Madison—(P)—A Dane-co circuit court Wednesday awarded Mrs. Clara Offordahl, Virroqua, $25,000 for the loss of her right leg. She suffered amputation of the member after a stove bought from Dr. J. A. Meyers, Dr. Forest, exploded Dec. 1, 1927. She had sued Dr. Meyers for $50,000.

BALLET DANCER GOES TO STATE UNIVERSITY

Madison—(P)—Miss Henrietta Hencke has transferred from the ballet of the Metropolitan Opera company of New York to the University of Wisconsin, where as a freshman co-ed she finds life interesting.
After three years on the boards of the nation's most famous theatrical spot, Miss Hencke has come to Wisconsin in preference to a European tour with Hans Weiner, New York dancer.
She looks back to calling Lawrence Tibbett, just "Larry," and to the temperamental outburst of Maria Jeritza, when as a page she awkwardly stepped on the opera star's train and tripped Miss Jeritza. But the ballet is a hard grind, Miss Hencke says, and she prefers going to school. She reports her yen for Wisconsin came from a magazine article on the course in dancing, and it is in that department she is enrolled as a freshman.
In typical Cinderella style, Miss Hencke says her ballet dancing came from her skill with a needle. It was her homemade dress that attracted Rosina Galli, premiere danseuse of the opera, and opened a place in the ballet.

Favors Special Hospitals For Fight Against Cancer

Philadelphia—(P)—The creation of five or six great institutions at strategic points throughout the country to be devoted to the fight against cancer was recommended Thursday by Dr. James Ewing of the New York Skin and Cancer hospital, at a round table conference at the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.
Dr. Ewing said the institutions would cost about $10,000,000 each and that one or two of them should be government owned and the others privately owned. He expressed the opinion that until such steps are taken it would be almost impossible to control cancer because the study of the disease was such a tremendous undertaking as to demand group study.
"Cancer cannot be controlled by individuals," he said. "Diagnosis demands expensive experience gained only through experiment."
The proposed institutions should have three functions. First, service to the patient, diagnosis and treatment; second, they should be centers for dissemination of cancer knowledge to the public and the training of cancer specialists; and third, research, the most important and most expensive function.
"Cancer used to be considered purely a surgical problem, but with the growth of radiology and laboratory diagnosis the ordinary surgeon is no longer competent to combat it alone. The subject is so extensive and complicated that the fields are beyond the capabilities of the unattached institution or surgeon."
Dr. Rupert H. Eike of Atlanta, said that "operating purely upon operable cases by unattached physicians is an insidious evil and the greatest advance in cancer can be achieved by the college of surgeons in discouraging unattached surgeons from operating on cases that are only made worse by operations."
The recommendation of Dr. Ewing for five or six large cancer institutions was commended by Dr. Ernest M. Leland of Boston, a member of the staff of the state-controlled Monroville hospital for exclusive care of cancer cases.

WHEN you've once experienced the convenience and care-free peace-of-mind in using Eveready Prestone, the ONE-SHOT anti-freeze, you'll wonder why you ever fussed around with old-fashioned, makeshift methods. A single filling with Eveready Prestone, and you're all set for the season!

Eveready Prestone is always neutral... except when the temperature drops below freezing. Then it takes a hand in things, and gives you the safe, sure protection you need.

In the meantime, it doesn't steam or boil away with smelly fumes, or heat-up your motor, or harm the finish on your hood, or give you the bother of constant testing and frequent refilling. It just quietly does its stuff... all winter long, on a single filling.

Early this year, cars in the famous Goodrich Silver Fleet used Eveready Prestone through 35,000 miles of heat and cold... temperatures ranging from near zero to above ninety degrees. Quoting from the official report: "No freezing or overheating occurred... Eveready Prestone stood up under the severe conditions of the test."

Now, scientific research has developed Eveready Prestone so that it offers even greater satisfaction than that which more than a million motorists enjoyed last winter. The new Eveready Prestone is green in color, to identify it readily.

Eveready Prestone comes to you undiluted, and one filling lasts all winter. Compared with other anti-freezes, a smaller quantity is required... that's the reason for its marked economy. It is available in small-sized cans, for those who live in the South and other moderate climates.

Eveready Prestone is always in tune with the temperature, so you can prepare your car for winter now. Go to your dealer or garage-man today. Have him protect your car with Eveready Prestone, taking the simple precautions necessary to make the cooling-system water-tight.

The Eveready Hour, radio's oldest commercial feature, is broadcast every Tuesday evening nine (Eastern standard time) from WJAF over a nation-wide N. B. C. network of 21 stations.

INDIANS CLAIM GAME LAWS NOT FOR THEM

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The state supreme court had under advisement today the plea of 1400 Indians on Lake Superior that they be exempted from the Michigan laws governing fishing and hunting.

Erie's submitted to the court held that old treaties gave the Indians the right to take game and fish without regard to modern statutes.

Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney-general and governor-apparent, argued that the treaties were made when game was abundant and the Indian tribes depended upon it for livelihood.

"The sovereignty of the state, and its right to regulate and protect wild life cannot now be disputed," he said.

ADORNED BROW IS SOUGHT BY WOMEN

They're Fastening on Little Ornament of Enamel or of Brilliants Now

BL AILEEN LAMONT (Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press) New York —(CPA)— Women are beginning to realize that an unadorned brow at the top of which a hat is perched may not be the most attractive thing in nature. We told you so. Aha, and what are they doing about it? They're fastening a little ornament, of enamel or of brilliants, right upon the center of the top of the brow and breaks the line.

Some of the new girdles and corselettes, especially for evening wear, are two inches wider at the front and sides than those of yesterday. The extra inches supposedly wipe out that distressing bulge of flesh which even the slim figure sometimes evinces in a girdle. The evening corselette often has a lace brieere attached. So sheer and light is the 1930 wool dress that it weighs hardly more than one pound. Plain color weaves or mixtures are distinctly newer than definite patterns. Cluffon, worsted, featherweight tweed, and wool crepe are among the intriguing names.

WISCONSIN TO ISSUE 75,000 DEER TAGS

Madison —(P)— More than 75,000 deer tags probably will be issued by Wisconsin this year to hunters before or during the 10-day biennial deer hunting season, Dec. 1 to 10, according to the officials of the state conservation commission. Chiefly due to the one-buck law, Wisconsin has more deer now than a quarter of a century ago, it was pointed to show the reason for the large number of licenses. Better protective growth in the woods has also aided deer propagation.

The one buck law was first adopted in 1915. Three years later it was repealed, and the season after the law was repealed, 26,000 deer were slaughtered in the proportion of 1 buck to every 12 does and fawns. As a result hunting was poor for a number of seasons afterward, since breeding almost ceased. In 1923 the one buck law again was passed with the added regulation that there should be deer hunting only every even numbered year. During 1928 a total of 73,000 deer tags were issued. The state no longer requires a report on deer shot and therefore has no record on the number killed.

At the same time the commission warned that the Golden Plover, which has collected in marsh lands is protected by federal law, although there is no state restriction. Golden Plover have congregated principally on the marshes in the vicinity of Fond du Lac and many of them have been killed by hunters who did not know they were protected under federal law, the commission reported.

SEEK SAFETY VALVE FOR LAND MOVEMENT

St. Paul —(P)— The federal government proposes to apply a safety valve to the back-to-the-land movement.

Recognizing the adverse effects of improper land use transient industries, discontinued transportation, loss of taxes, and deserted homes — the Lake States Forest Experiment station is sponsoring a county-by-county economic survey.

Such facts as tax delinquency, ownership of land and purposes of ownership, profits and trends in agriculture, farm abandonment, recreational development, local industrial development, and the cost of roads, school and local government, are sought.

The state of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan, once the largest producers of timber in the Union, are included in the projected studies.

Through them the government hopes to prevent settlers from taking on unproductive land.

CATHOLIC WOMEN PICK "BOYOLOGY" COUNCIL

Milwaukee —(P)— After Jerome J. Foley, Recline, state chairman for the Knights of Columbus "boyology" work, had pleaded with the Milwaukee Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women for an active program in each parish for proper guidance of the leisure time of boys, officers of the council were elected Thursday. They included Miss Sadie Gallagher, Madison, and Assemblywoman Mary O. Kryszak, Milwaukee, elected to the board of directors with others and Mrs. Frank Weber, Sheboygan, elected corresponding secretary.

Banks Show Big Boost In Savings

If the alleged economical depression is at work in Appleton, the last quarterly reports of local financial institutions fail to indicate it. Reports of banks show there was a marked increase in deposits shown in the last 12 months.

There was an increase of $133,334.33 in savings deposits on Oct. 15, 1930 compared to the same date last year, leading local financial authorities to believe that the depression has not particularly affected this community.

On Oct. 15 this year the total savings deposits was $5,414,435.14, while a year ago they were $4,281,041.81, bankers' figures indicate.

There was a tremendous increase of $416,687.87 in bank resources noted on Oct. 15 of this year compared with the same date last year. Bank resources of the five local banking institutions on Oct. 15 totaled $13,456,000.21, while a year ago they were $13,039,918.54.

The capital stock of the five institutions has remained the same during the past year totalling $1,000,000, the reports indicate.

There was an increase of $87,000 in surpluses at local banks on Oct. 15. On the same date last year the surpluses of the five institutions were listed at $831,000, while this year they are $918,000.

There was an increase of $28,049.78 in undivided profits in the five institutions. On Oct. 15 last year undivided profits totalled $395,729.96, while this year they totalled $423,779.74.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "LIBRA"

If October 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:15 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:50 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date will bring prosperity, but not happiness, and there will be a multitude of small worries to overcome. Existing interests forsake, but not for your good. Be careful of love and courtship, as misunderstandings face you. Your elders will be your friends.

Children born on this October 18th will have intense, emotional and sometimes explosive natures, and they will need to cultivate self-control. They will be fond of safety and social life, and will like to take an active part in all that is going around them. They demand attention and love, although they will not express much affection.

You have a very lavish and very extravagant nature, and these two traits are exhibited in nearly every role you play. You are a born spender, and nearly all your material gifts soon slip through your fingers. You will always, however, have an abundance of good humor and your wells of faith will never run dry. Your spirits can never be papered. There are few people who live more in the "now" than you do, and you often have to pay heavily for your yesterdays, but you do so much cheerfully, and you will never learn to provide for "that rainy day."

You get your excitement from outward rather than inward things; get it from dashing about, and from dashing about, and from seeking new and fantastic quips of ex-erience. You will never stay "put," and you are a born wanderer in quest of something new, and your accumulations will be mental and not material. You have the intellectual grasp which shows that if you wished, you could make life stand on its head, and probably you are taking from her bins, the things which you most desire—the novelties of life. You are never without friends, and you soon make news ones—picked from every walk of life. If a person interests you or amuses you, they need have no further pedigree. Your lack of snobbery is a hallmark of your greatness, and popularity. You are quixotically loyal, and you will always have a great many hangers on who take advantage of the bigness of your heart.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE BORN October 18th: 1.—Robert L. Stevens—boat-builder and inventor. 2.—Helen Hunt Jackson—author. 3.—Edward Locke—actor. 4.—Frederick III of Germany. 5.—Charles Scribner—publisher. 6.—Charles Wadsworth Camp—author.

While en route on County Trunk 18, near Oshkosh, on the Shiocton road, Clement Thorne and Miss Evelyn McCully also were held up. In neither case was any money secured from the victims.

Question of Munitions Sale Long Troublesome One to Government

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1930, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington.—(CPA)—The United States government has been trying to decide what policy to pursue with reference to the revolt in Brazil and it is almost certain that a benevolent attitude toward the existing government will be maintained.

Usually the question of recognition is the thing which foreign governments are compelled to decide if the revolution proves successful but at this time, with the outcome under certain, practically all the foreign governments are disposed to do nothing about recognition. The American government, however, has the issue presented in another form when the Brazilian government endeavors to get munitions and supplies.

The department of state has announced that the Brazilian government's application for new manufacture of munitions in the United States has already been made and the American government has offered no objection to the purchases. Indeed, an official announcement states that the Brazilian government "has a perfect right to buy munitions in this country."

This rule is not a new one but it has been the source of much embarrassment in the past. It has been applied in the case of Mexico in various ways. Occasionally the federal government in Mexico has been strong enough to buy munitions in the United States and squelch revolutions but more often the exportation of arms and ammunitions to a federal government has been fought with much danger because the rebels have captured the supplies or interfered with their delivery.

POSSIBLE EMBARGO

If the Brazilian revolutionists should capture the important seaports they would be in a position to obtain possession of the munitions designed for their opponents. In the long history of revolutions in Mexico most of the ammunition used has been captured from the federalists. For this reason the American government may, if it desires, under the action of congress, prohibit the exportation of any arms and ammunition to a revolution town country. This is what is called an embargo on arms. If the fighting in Brazil should become more extensive and if it is apparent that both sides are really enabled to continue the bloodshed largely with American supplies, there will undoubtedly be consideration given to an embargo.

For the moment, however, the Brazilian government appears to be dominating the situation and particularly the seaports, so that the munitions obtained from the United States are designed to help the existing government to stay in power.

HELPED CALLES REGIME

It was timely aid of this kind which helped the Calles government stay in power in Mexico and it may turn out also in this case that the action of the American government in refusing to proclaim an embargo on arms will turn the scales in favor of the federal authorities in Brazil.

With the use of airplanes in modern warfare, more damage can be done than in the old way. In a country like Brazil, with large distances to cover, an airplane bombardment is something not likely to be dismissed in its effect upon revolutionists. The Mexican government with its planes has been able to do considerable damage to rebel forces. The Brazilian government is buying

Wall Street, New York, (CPA)—The monthly bulletin of the New York stock exchange issued Thursday in which is included an analysis of current market values of listed stock, indicates that there has been a 20 per cent shrinkage in such values in the past six months.

On April 1 the total market value of $56 common stocks was $67,521,816,611. On Oct. 1 it was $51,875,797,008. A list of 459 preferred stocks showed a decline in market value for the same period from $8,553,630,945 to $8,269,386,097. The total decrease in 1,316 common and preferred issues was slightly over $16,000,000,000.

While stocks have been falling, easy money has favorably affected the position of bonds. On April 1, the market value of 1,550 bond issues listed on the New York stock exchange was given as $45,291,463,272

DEPARTMENT WARNS OF RABBIT DISEASE

The state department of health has warned against tularemia, a disease contracted from handling rabbits. With the approach of the rabbit hunting season, when the animals are desired for food rather than for their fur, the danger are more complex, it was announced.

Only infected rabbit can spread the disease, it was pointed out, and the majority of animals are not infected. However, care should be exercised, since it is difficult to determine when an afflicted rabbit is being handled.

WAIVES EXTRADITION, FACES ROBBERY CHARGE

Salt Lake City.—(CP)—John D. Osnick, alias Mike Frankovitch, 28, waived extradition early today and said he would return to Denver to face charges of robbing the American Railway Express company of $33,000 in a single handed holdup there Sept. 20, police announced.

Osnick, according to police, late last night signed a confession to the robbery which involved binding a night watchman. He was arrested for questioning a few hours after arriving here from Wyoming.

In the alleged confession Osnick said he had $19,000 in a safe deposit box in the Denver National bank and buried the remainder in vacant lots in Denver.

RADIO STAMPEDE FOR MORE POWER BROUGHT TO HALT

Last Station Seeking 50,000 Watts Presents Case to Commission

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington—The stampe of big broadcasting stations for the right to open their transmitters to the top lawful notch—50,000 watts of power—is over.

Thursday the last of the 25 stations to apply for this maximum power put in its case. The federal radio commission has before it a mammoth record, containing testimony of leading radio engineers of the nation, and overwhelmingly in favor of so-called "super-power." The commission must decide whether it will reaffirm its present regulation limiting the number of cleared channels upon which stations of 50,000 watts may operate to 20, or whether it will lift the restriction and allow all 40 of these channels to accommodate such stations.

Not a solitary broadcaster favored the commission's restrictive order. All opposed it as a waste of radio facilities, against the best interests of the public, and as depriving many listeners remote from radio stations of the service guaranteed them under the radio law.

SQUABBLES NUMEROUS
There were squabbles among the broadcasters who appeared before the commission, and the going was fast and furious during the hearings of stations in the middle west, where eight broadcasters were competing for the two 50,000 watt channel assignments remaining to that territory under the commission's order. But even these embattled stations presented a united front in opposing the restrictive order, as did the broadcasters of the four other zones.

Originally 27 cleared channel stations applied for the maximum power, and theoretically, were competing for the 11 channel assignments available for such power to the country under the commission's order. Two of them, however, dropped out. Actually, some 50 stations appeared before the commission to defend their positions in the radio firmament, but they did not oppose high power. As a matter of fact the commission invited all cleared channel stations, which are eligible for 50,000 watts power, to participate, and most of them took advantage of the opportunity.

Absolute harmony marked the cases of the four western stations which constitute the group of requests from the fifth radio zone for the maximum power. There was not a word of dispute between the stations, yet there are only two vacant assignments in the zone, and two of the stations must suffer if the commission sticks by its guns.

BACKED BY DATA
With expert engineering data to back them, stations KGO, at San Francisco, and KOA, at Denver, both operated by the National Broadcasting company but the former owned by General Electric, presented their cases Wednesday. KGO uses 7,500 watts and KOA 12,500, and they both aspire to 50,000 watts. Station KPO, San Francisco, operated by the San Francisco Chronicle and Hale Bros. Stores, Inc., also put in a case without opposition backed by strong engineering testimony, while KSL, operated by the Radio Service corporation at Salt Lake City, made its unopposed plea Thursday, winding up the hearings.

The only controversy expected from the west was on the application of station KFRC, at San Francisco, for the KFO cleared channel, and with the maximum power. This station is now in the "regional" category with but 1,000 watts power. At the outset of the western hearings, the application was withdrawn by counsel for the station.

Two of the foremost engineering authorities of the country appeared

May Revive Old Charges Against "Public Enemies"

Chicago—(AP)—The possibility that numerous old charges would be made over into new prosecutions presented a threat to the city's lawless today. Digging from its files the cases against racketeers and hoodlums who were brought to trial, the Chicago Crime commission turned them over to the state's attorney along with plans to re-open by new indictments charges previously nolle prossed.

After studying the records which were provided by Col. Henry Chamberlain, operating director of the commission, Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne said he believed that they could be made the basis for successful prosecutions. The Chicago Herald and Examiner said that among the records turned over to the state's attorney were some dealing with the case of William McSwigin, assistant state's attorney who was slain in 1926. The paper pointed out that the name of Al Capone, who is No. 1 on the crime commission's "public enemies" list, has been mentioned in connection with the case.

Meanwhile the disappearance from the Chicago detective bureau of a list of gangsters scheduled for arrest as vagrants was the subject for a grand jury investigation today. Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock, Lieut. John Ryan and Ryan's secretary, William Balswick, have

GORROW ORGANIZES CLASS AT GREEN BAY

E. M. Gorrow, field representative of the University of Wisconsin Extension division has returned from Green Bay where he recently completed the organization of an extension class in sociology. The class is to be conducted by Professor A. E. Croft of the department of sociology at the state university. Professor Croft will meet with the class one evening each week for a period of 16 weeks.

After vanishing from the detective bureau the list was found in a federal raid, under the pillow of Tony Pagenti, reputed to be a follower of Capone. Later it was learned that a new list had been issued and that some of the names of the original had been omitted.

DAUGHTER FIGHTS WILL OF DONOR OF WOMANLESS LIBRARY

Le Mars, Iowa.—(P)—His daughter today had written a postscript to what T. M. Zink, donor of the world's first womanless library, had indicated as his final word on his favorite antipathy.

Through attorneys, Mrs. Margaret Becker, petitioned that her father's will bequeathing $35,000 for the library, be denied probate. She termed the final testament of her father "an insult to the womanhood of America, a libel and a slander against public morals" and said that Zink's hatred of femininity had grown into a partial insanity.

Zink's will provided that his fortune be placed in trust for 75 years, when the accumulated sum, $300,000 should be given this city or another which would build a library in accord with his stipulation. These barred the shelves of the library to women authors and opened the institution to men and boys only.

The rift in domesticity caused by the announcement of the will and the many arguments which followed in this city of 5,000 were gradually narrowing. The women were in entire agreement with Mrs. Becker while the strong, silent sex were unanimous in agreeing that Zink had done well to save his bombshell until after his death.

The city council, in the meantime, has delayed action on the benefaction awaiting the result of the court contest.

RECIPROCITY

Financial And Market News

STOCKS CONTINUE TO WORK TOWARD LOW PRICE LEVELS

Reaction Is Considered Aftermath of Rally Which Checked Downward Move

BULLETIN
New York (AP)—The stock market closed heavy today, with numerous losses of 1 to 5 points. Fair resistance to selling pressure failed to appear until the late afternoon. Allied Chemical had one of its wide drops, sliding off more than 15 points. General Electric declined 2 points. Standard Oil of New York, U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone and American Cattle lost about 3 points. Westinghouse 4, and Johns-Manville 5, closing near the lowest. Total sales approximately 2,000,000 shares.

BY CLAUD A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York (AP)—The prolonged process of mopping up the trickles of secondary liquidation was resumed in today's stock market where it was left off yesterday, and share prices continued to work lower in a placid market.

After such a violent selling movement as that of last week is checked by a technical rally, the recovery is frequently lost as hangover liquidation is disposed of some days later, and the action of the market was not regarded as surprising.

Losses of 1 to 5 points were numerous, but trading held close to the narrow limits of yesterday. A few shares broke into new low ground, including General Electric, United Gas Improvement, American Water Works, Union Pacific, New York Central and Colorado Fuel, the last named, influenced by unfavorable earnings estimates. U. S. Steel, DuPont and Air Reduction declined about 3 points, and North American, Eastman, Westinghouse, and Johns-Manville, about 4 to 5. Atchafalaya dropped nearly 7, and Allied Chemical nearly 15. Utilities and rails were particularly heavy.

NEWS IS MIXED
Business news was mixed, and in the main not of a character to bolster stocks. The weekly federal reserve reports were interpreted favorably, however, particularly the $10,000,000 increase in circulation, making a gain of more than $60,000,000 in the past three weeks, which is accepted as a sign of increasing demands of trade. The decline of $153,000,000 in brokers' loans was no larger than expected, and Wall Street was more anxious to see the condition statement of member banks in the second week, to learn if liquidation of bank loans against security collateral had again expedited the drop in brokers' loans. Monetary conditions were practically unchanged, with call loans holding officially at two per cent.

"Brokers reported further investment buying of stocks on declines. One estimate placed institutional buying at $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 in the past ten days. Investment trusts and others, however, were included to move cautiously, pending the further testing of recent price levels. While the greater caution shown by the bears has been widely regarded as a stabilizing influence, some brokers pointed out that the scarcity of stocks for loaning purposes seemed to be more artificial than real, and tended to defuse the outlook. Both the standard statistics and the analyst preliminary indices of business activity for September, adjusted for seasonal influences, were announced at new lows for the current depression, and such exhibits tend to hold investment buying in check, although they represent water under the mill.

Fresh declines in crude oil and gasoline prices, and copper production figures showing a slight increase in September were further indications of the difficulties of industries troubled with overproduction, although normal consumption of the copper might quickly bring that industry into balance.

Less Activity Is Seen in Foreign Groups; Trading Thin in That Section
New York (AP)—An upward trend was maintained by the bond market today in an irregular and quiet session.

HOGS MOVE UPWARD WITH BRISK BUYING

Chicago (AP)—Brisk action supported by eastern buyers of hogs and small local operators, gave the swine market an auspicious start. Moderate receipts estimated officially at 18,000 carried 5,000 direct to several packers and were supplemented by 3,000 transload hogs carried over from Thursday's session. Sales of 290,240 lb. at $10.00-10.15, with selected offerings at 10.20 were a flat 15c higher than average prices prevailing on the previous day.

Quiet prevailed in the cattle alleys as only 2,000 fresh animals arrived. The bulk went into the steer division and the buying movement lacked energy.

Less than 500 lambs were billed straight to packing plants out of the estimated 15,000 fresh arrivals.

MAIL-PASSENGER AIR LINE OFF ON INITIAL FLIGHT

Trip Marks Another Step in Progress of Aviation in Country

BY L. E. WHITE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Atlanta, Ga.—(CPA)—Another step in the progress of aviation in this country was taken Wednesday with the inaugural flight of the air mail-passenger line from Atlanta to Los Angeles.

It is the first air mail contract to be awarded by the post office department under the terms of the Mc-Nary-Watres act, which, besides increasing the rates for the handling of air mail, also gives the contractor the right to carry passengers along with the mails. The post office department heartily favors this plan, since it feels it will benefit not only the contractors but the public generally and aviation as a whole.

The Atlanta-Los Angeles route, which is being flown by planes of the Southern Air Fast Express, was set into operation when Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and other postal and aviation officials flew with the first mail passenger plane pioneering the route from Atlanta west.

W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail, predicts that within three years passenger services over the various air mail routes will be operating on a night as well as a day schedule.
The McNary-Watres act makes night passenger service lawful.

Mr. Glover's belief is shared by most of those connected with aviation and some who are more enthusiastic believe that before another year expires night passenger service will be in operation. It is rumored that one of the transcontinental lines now in operation will pioneer
the movement within a year.

FORD RAISES WAGES OF HIS BERLIN EMPLOYEES

Berlin (P)—The Socialist newspaper "Der Abend" Thursday published the text of a mimeographed letter sent to the employees of the Ford automobile plant in Berlin indicating that the American manufacturer, in Germany as well as in America, is raising wages on the theory of increasing workers' purchasing power.
The letter was read with interest because the government has proposed to reduce wages as a measure for increasing German trade through reduced production costs.
The letter said:

"As a result of your increased productivity we are enabled to raise your wage, effective Oct. 20, from 2.40 marks hourly to 2.50 marks.
We know that this advance will tend to add to your purchasing power."
The letter was delivered, "Der Abend" says, on the very day 128,000
Berlin metals workers quit work amounting in some cases to 8 per cent and others to 6 per cent.

DOUBLE DECK COTS IN PRISON AT WAUPUN

Waupun (P)—Deputy Warden
Guy H. Taff, Thursday started installation of double deck cots in the state prison. The increase of the prison population to 1,415 men made necessary the use of "berth" beds.
Men have previously had single cots or single cots in cell-corridors. Deputy Warden Taff, agreeing with Warden Oscar Lee, pointed to the dangers of having the prisoners
"doubled up," and to idleness enforced on some of the prisoners, through lack of space for more industries.

Kabat Murder Trial Stirred County To Fever Heat Quarter Century Ago

BY H. K. DERUS
There is Michael McCarthy who was the question which was puzzling Outagamie county officials 25 years ago this month and when it was answered the county was given one of the most sensational murder cases in its history.

The slayer, Wenzel Kabat, of Manitowoc and Green Bay, is still serving his life sentence in state prison at Waupun.

Kabat murdered McCarthy and then hacked and sawed his body to pieces and burned it on the McCarthy farm, which is located at "Mc-Carthy's crossing" on Highway 41, between Kaukauna and Green Bay.

Records show that McCarthy disappeared on the night of Sept. 13, 1905. The next day Kabat appeared on the McCarthy farm and took possession of the property. He told neighbors McCarthy "had gotten in trouble" with a woman and left for parts unknown. Kabat was armed with a bill of sale for $3,300—McCar-thy's property was valued at about $20,000—and he immediately started disposing of the personal property on the farm.

Neighbors and McCarthy's parents became suspicious. Kabat's story did not satisfy them and when they tried to check some of the details, they found it confusing and often mixed.
Rumors circulated until the authorities were asked to make an investigation.

CALL DISTRICT ATTORNEY
On Sept. 26, 1905, A. H. Krugmeier, who was then district attorney, was called to Kaukauna to investigate. Mr. Krugmeier's investigation led to the arrest of Kabat on a charge of kidnapping. Official investigation of his story of McCar-thy's disappearance led to the same confusing results as did the private investigations.

Kabat was taken to the county jail where he refused to talk except to claim he had bought the farm from McCarthy and that McCarthy had left for parts unknown. He claimed he didn't know where McCarthy had gone. He was arrested on complaint of Charles McCarthy, father of the missing man, and hearing was set for Oct. 2, 1906 before Justice N. D. Schwin at Kaukauna.
He was held at the county jail under $1,200 bond.

In the meantime the search for McCarthy continued. Many people were of the opinion that McCarthy had been murdered and his body has been thrown into the Fox river, which skirts the farm. There was considerable agitation favoring dragging the river for the body and scores of searching parties combed the woods in the vicinity seeking a hidden grave.

On Oct. 6 the gruesome discovery of the remains of a fire which consumed human bones was made on the McCarthy farm by Peter Elmer-man and Alderman Behrens—both of Kaukauna and both of whom are now dead.

This resulted in the filing of a murder charge against Kabat and a rush of curious spectators to the farm to look for some bones and to see the spot where it was believed McCarthy had been murdered and then burned.

MANY VISIT FARM
Thousands of people flocked to the McCarthy farm. The street cars were crowded and the road to the farm was filled with horse drawn vehicles of every description hauling men, women and children. On Oct.
9, 1905, Anton Elith, Kaukauna, found a blood smeared saw and axe which evidently had been hidden hastily in the bushes along the banks of the river.

Visitors to the farm uncovered several pieces of skull, teeth and bits of finger and toe bones which doctors identified as human bones.
Several small boys told of seeing Kabat busy with a bonfire at the spot all the day following McCar-thy's disappearance. Kabat explained to these boys that he was cleaning up the land and burning the underbrush.

In the course of the trial, Mr.
Krugmeier and T. H. Ryan who assisted him in the prosecution of the case, brought out the fact that many burned nails had been taken from the ashes and they pointed out that if Kabat had been burning brush

there would have been no nails.

Kabat, despite the circumstantial evidence, denied the slaying. He insisted McCarthy had "sold him the farm and showed his "bill of sale," but couldn't explain why there were no witnesses to the signing.

All Kaukauna turned out on Oct.
11 when Kabat was taken before Justice Schwin for a hearing on the charge of murder. Residents of Appleton, Little Chute and Kimberly lined the interurban street car tracks between the two cities for a glimpse of the then-alleged murderer, as he was taken to Kaukauna for the hearing.

PRISONER GUARDED
Eight especially appointed police officers, Sheriff A. G. Koch, now register of deeds, and a squad of deputy sheriffs formed a heavy guard about Kabat to prevent lynching. The late Marshall Conlon, then chief of police at Kaukauna, was active with Mr.
Krugmeier, Mr. Ryan, Sheriff Koch and others in weaving the chain of circumstantial evidence which later led to Kabat's imprisonment for life.

A long line of curious spectators, with a good many grim-visaged friends of McCarthy's mingling, lined the streets to Justice Schwin's office.
Sullen cries of "lynch him", "hang him" and "kill him" broke from the crowd frequently but the heavily armed guards evidently discouraged any crystallized efforts to "get" Kab-at.

The prisoner was calm and collected as he faced the court and heard the warrant read charging him with murder in the first degree. He answered calmly that he wasn't guilty and Judge Schwin bound him over to circuit court for trial. He was taken back to the county jail and a squad of deputy sheriffs was appointed to maintain a guard over him day and night.

INSTALL FLOOD LIGHTS
Flood lights were installed about the jail so that guards would immediately be aware should there be a concerted effort to lynch Kabat. During the winter the county board voted to remodel the county jail and Kabat made an effort to escape and was captured after he had released himself from his cell with the aid of a wooden key, fashioned with a piece of steel which he removed from his shoe.

Previous to Kabat's arrest on the murder charge he had served four years in the state reformatory at Green Bay, from which he had made two efforts to escape.

Kabat was brought back to Appleton on March 12, 1906, for arraignment in circuit court and he again pleaded not guilty. Trial was set for June, 1906.

The case opened before Judge John Goodland on June 4, 1906. Never in the history of the county had its residents known such excitement.
Thronged jammed into the courthouse and the little circuit court room was literally swelling with spectators.
Many brought lunches and remained all day so they wouldn't miss the opportunity of a seat at the afternoon session.

Two days were consumed selecting a jury which elected Albert Dexter as its foreman. Other members were:
H. Siefert, Ellington; Herman Learman, Liberty; L. H. Hurlbut, Malne; William Gough, Maple Creek; Anton Koehne, Appleton; Chris Schroeder, Center; R. T. Davidson, Liberty; Henry Jones, Shulton; George Brown, Ellington; Rudolph Kirschner, Ellington; and Henry Drephal, Black Creek.

CALL MANY WITNESSES
After the selection of the jury the case began with the prosecution conducted by Mr. Krugmeier and Mr.
Ryan. Scores of witnesses were called by the state to testify as to McCar-thy's character, to the time of his disappearance and to the circumstances which led to the finding of the human bones, which the state contended were McCarthy's.

The defense was conducted by Earl
P. Finch, an Oshkosh attorney, and
A. M. Spencer, an Appleton attorney.
They tried to prove that Kabat had really purchased the farm and McCarthy had left because of the alleged trouble with a woman. A Green Bay woman testified that McCarthy attempted to attack her at her home but under cross examination her story was confused.

Attorneys for the defense tried to show it would be impossible to burn a body in the short time that McCarthy had between the time of the alleged murder on the night of Sept.
13 and the next morning. They also tried to show that the odor from such an act would be sure to spread to neighboring farms and attract attention.

The surprise of the trial was then sprung by Mr. Ryan and Mr. Krug-meier when they introduced Dr. John Golden, of Chicago, as an expert witness to tell about the burning of a corpse on the same spot, where it was believed McCarthy's body was burned.

The experiment was made on the McCarthy farm on the night of Jan.
23, 1906, Dr. Golden with Mr. Ryan, Mr. Krugmeier, Dr. W. N. Nolan of Kaukauna, Captain F. Heinemann and Peter Gloudemans, tenant of the farm, were witnesses.

CORPSE IS BURNED
Dr. Golden explained the body was burned between midnight and 4:30
the following morning on a fire about the same size as that which the ashes revealed had previously been kindled there. The doctor testified the body which had been burned was of a man about the same age and size as the murdered man. He said all that was left at 4:30 were about the same small bits of bones which were found in the ashes after McCarthy's disappearance. He also testified that no odor was perceptible at a distance of more than 20 feet.

This testimony, combined with the testimony of John W. Tyrell, Milwaukee handwriting expert, who said McCarthy's signature on the bill of sale held by Kabat for the farm, was a forgery, were believed to be the crowning blows against Kabat's defense.

On June 14, after the attorneys for both sides had spent more than a day in their pleas to the jury, the jurors retired. The defense based its hopes on their claims that McCar-thy's body had never been found while the state had built up a strong chain of circumstantial evidence.
Only a little more than an hour was necessary for the jury to agree on a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Kabat accepted the verdict in a stoical manner.

JUDGE SCORES KABAT
Two days later Kabat was taken into court and Judge Goodland sentenced him to life imprisonment. In declaring sentence Judge Goodland scored Kabat in scathing terms for the murder. He said, in part:
"You deliberately planned the destruction of this good man that you might gain the possession of his property. But you were not satisfied with murder, you cremated his body and then in trying in vain to find an excuse for his disappearance, you slandered his memory by the manufacture of that contemptible story which you knew was an infamous lie."

"It is generally a hard matter for the court to sentence a man to the penitentiary for life, and especially a young man as you are, but in sentencing you today, I have no regret as I believe you are receiving what you deserve."

"I will not waste words on you in talking to you of repentance, for I think that is out of the question, but if such a thing be possible as your repenting, you will have ample time to do so."

And so on Saturday, June 20, 1906, Kabat was taken to the state penitentiary at Waupun to start serving a sentence of life imprisonment.
However, the cunning Kabat has not spent all of the 25 years since the cruel murder of McCarthy behind the bars. On Oct. 3, 1914, after months of crafty planning and work, he escaped from the prison.

SAWS CELL BARS
He saved the bars in his cell door in the North West Cell hall, went through the door of the cell hall with a wooden key manufactured by himself, crept from the cell hall to the tailor shop and then escaped over the wall at the northwest corner. He was free about two and a half years and was finally captured Jan. 23, 1917, at Stillwater, Minn., where he was found working in a tailor shop.

Threats against lives of Mr. Ryan and Mr. Krugmeier, whom Kabat credited with sending him to jail, never were carried out and Mr. Ryan today still scoffs at rumors of Kabat's enmity. It was said that when Kabat was taken to prison he had vowed he would escape and come back to Appleton to kill Mr. Krug-meier and Mr. Ryan.

Another mystifying angle to the Kabat case is the fact that all of the official Kabat trial records long ago disappeared from the files at the county courthouse. All the transcripts of the evidence in the case are gone as well as the other documents in connection with the trial.

After their disappearance, Kabat started a series of applications and paroles and he was balked in his efforts by the activities of Mr. Krug-meier and Mr. Ryan.

Largely because Mr. Ryan had kept a complete record of the case in clippings taken from newspapers in Appleton and other state papers during the entire time the McCarthy murder and Kabat's trial occupied attention of the press, his hopes for freedom were balked. Official copies of all the newspaper clippings were made and placed on file with the state board of control and these were largely responsible for refusals to all of Kabat's attempts to secure a pardon or parole.

THE CURE BEGINS IN THE KITCHEN

So many people suffer from constipation. It steals health and happiness. They spend millions of dollars yearly on pills and drugs.

That's the wrong way to try to cure constipation. The right way is to correct the diet—add enough roughage to your food to sweep the poisons out of your system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to do this. You'll enjoy it as a ready-to-eat cereal, with milk or cream. A delicious food for maintaining health.

Use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also for making bran muffins and breads. Adds a pleasant, nut-like flavor to omelets, soups, salads.

Church and State

What Lutherans Have Held for 400 Years

"Our teachers were constrained to show the difference between the power of the Church and the power of the sword. The power of the Church is exercised only by teaching or preaching the Gospel and administering the Sacraments, granting not bodily but eternal things. Since the power of the Church grants eternal things, and is exercised only by the ministry of the Word, it does not interfere with civil government; no more than the art of singing interferes with civil government. For civil government deals with other things than does the Gospel.
The civil rulers defend not minds, but bodies and bodily things against manifest injuries, and restrain men with the sword and bodily punishments in order to preserve civil justice and peace.

"Therefore the power of the Church and the civil power must not be confounded. The power of the Church has its own commission, to teach the Gospel and to administer the Sacraments. Let it not break into the office of another; let it not transfer the kingdoms of this world; let it not abrogate the laws of civil rulers; let it not abolish lawful obedience; let it not interfere with judgments concerning civil ordinances or contracts; let it not prescribe laws to civil rulers concerning the form of the Commonwealth."

NEW NAVY AIRSHIP WILL CARRY FIVE FIGHTING PLANES

Big Ship With Sixteen Rapid-fire Guns Will Be Ready Next May

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Akron, O.—While Great Britain mourns the loss of the R-101, the world's largest airship, and strives to find out just why the great ship was destroyed, Goodyear-Zeppelin mechanics here are steadily bringing to completion a giant of the skies that will be larger, safer and faster than any airship yet built.

This is the ZRS-4, scheduled to be delivered to the U. S. Navy in May, when it will be christened the Akron.

It will be a monster of 6,500,000 cubic feet—far larger than the ill-fated R-101, or the R-100, England's other superairship. Unlike those ships, built for commercial uses, it is to be strictly a fighting craft, and it will be the most powerful fighter that ever took the air.

Its huge skeleton is rapidly taking form here, rising high over lead like the framework of some prehistoric mammoth. When it is completed it will have these unusual features:

1. The Akron will be nearly three times the size of the Los Angeles, the navy's present airship, twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin and, although not much longer, far greater in power, speed and range than Great Britain's R-100 and R-101.

2. Eight powerful Maybach engines, with a total of nearly 4500 horsepower, will enable the ship to reach a maximum speed of 72 knots, or 83 land miles an hour, faster than any other airship. Set inside the hull and combined with titanic propellers, they will enable the ship to climb
at the rate of 2000 feet a minute, while moving forward at a speed of 80 miles an hour—much faster than any airplane could make the same altitude.

3. A hangar built within the hull will accommodate five air planes of the pursuit or observation type, to be taken up or let out through a T-shaped hatchway beneath by means of a secret trapeze arrangement.

4. Sixteen 50-caliber rapid-fire, high-pressure guns will be mounted at strategic points about the ship, according to Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics David S. Ingalls. These guns, if operated ashore, would have a useful range of about 4500 yards, or nearly three miles. They can fire about 500 bullets a minute.

5. Carrying 60 tons of fuel,
the Akron will be able to cruise, without landing or refueling, at a speed of nearly 60 miles an hour, as far as 9200 nautical miles, or about 11,000 land miles—nearly half the distance around the earth, double the range of the most modern surface scouting cruiser.

6. It will be the safest airship afloat, since it will have helium, the non-inflammable gas, as its lifting force; will be more sturdily built; will be divided into 12 compartments containing individual gas cells ranging in size from 80,000 to nearly a million cubic feet; will be accessible by means of corridors along both sides and along the top; and will be almost invulnerable to anti-aircraft or other gun fire.

7. Its radio equipment will include two powerful transmitters, covering the intermediate and high frequency ranges, receivers covering all ranges, two trailing antennas and a fixed antenna, radio compass and a radio facsimile transmitter and receiver for the transmission of sketches, maps and similar information. The transmitter will have a range of at least 6000 nautical miles, or one-third the distance around the earth.

8. A special dock for the construction of the Akron and its sister ship, the ZRS-5, cost $2,500,000, is the largest building without interior supports in the world, and is big enough to enable the building of a million cubic foot ship alongside the Akron, in addition to housing several balloons, blimps and airplanes in the remaining space.

Although the Akron is not being built for commercial uses, if modified for such service it could accommodate 100 passengers and a crew of 50, with all the luxuries and necessities required for them.
As a naval ship, however, it is to have a crew of 12 officers and 45 men.

Observing the construction of the Akron here is Lieutenant Thomas G. W. Settle, U. S. N., naval aircraft inspector for this district. Lieutenant Settle has had all-around experience on the Los Angeles, is a glider and airplane pilot and a ballistist of note.

The chief purpose of the Akron
according to Lieutenant Settle, will be to act as a scout cruiser for the fleet. It will be the advance eyes of the battle fleet, soar-ing high and far in advance, releasing its airplanes for scouting farther in advance, and relaying whatever information it gets back to the commander-in-chief of the fleet by radio and facsimile transmission.

Secondary to the scouting function will be these:

1. Convoy escort.
2. Bombardment of enemy territory and combatant ships.
3. Protection of own lines of communication and raiding the enemy's lines.
4. Destruction of enemy commerce.
5. Dispatch and transport.

The Akron is the product of more than a decade of planning and research. Soon after the war, the U. S. Navy interested itself in the construction of such a ship.
Commercial interests, headed by Paul W. Laurence, president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp., Company, got the Akron's American patent rights for Zeppelin's

UNIDENTIFIED BODY FOUND NEAR ANTIGO

Antigo—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man was found about five miles out of town near Highway 26
Thursday by Coroner Jake Lingle and Sheriff Thomas Ford, working on a tip contained in an unsigned letter. The body had lain at the roadside for some time, it was apparent.

The unsigned letter advised that the wife of the writer had stumbled over the body while she awaited his return from a garage where he had gone to get attention for his car when something went wrong along the road.

The letter said the writer was not signed because he wanted no publicity. There was nothing to indicate the cause of death, on first examination, the coroner said.

DOG SCARES BURGLAR AT STIMSON DWELLING

Washington—(AP)—"Cricket," pet
Scottish terrier belonging to Mrs.
Henry L. Stimson, was the hero today of the secretary of state's household as a result of the dog's springing to action Thursday night when a robber attempted to enter the Stimson home, "Woodley."

The secretary said the burglar attempted to enter a second story window while Secretary and Mrs. Stimson were resting before dinner last night. Attracted by the noise, "Cricket" went to the window and barked, causing the secretary to open the shutters and frighten away the prowler.

"Cricket has been a family institution, but he is our hero today," the secretary said.

BRITISH AVIATRIX SETS NEW EAST-WEST RECORD

Los Angeles—(AP)—Mrs. Keith Miller, noted British woman flier, captured the women's transconti-ental air record Thursday by landing at the Los Angeles municipal airport at 10:58 a. m. (P. S. T.) She said her total elapsed time from Valley Stream, N. Y., was 25 hours, 44 minutes, or four hours and 43 minutes under the mark of 30 hours, 27 minutes set last week by Miss Laura Ingalls, St. Louis aviatrix.

construction from Luftschiffbau-Zeppelin in Germany, brought over about a dozen Zeppelin experts under the leadership of Dr.
Karl Arnstein, among them Dr.
Wolfgang Klemperer, and dug into serious and detailed research work.

DID EXTENSIVE RESEARCH
After drawing up hundreds of plans, covering dozens of airship types, testing thousands of girder forms, joints and other construction details, the Goodyear-Zepplin engineers devised a ship that won two succeeding design competitions conducted by the U. S.
Navy, and brought to this company the contract for construction of the Akron and its sister ship, ZRS-5.

Some time before the Akron is delivered to the navy in May, 1931, according to present plans,
the ZRS-5 will be started. Fifteen or eighteen months later, that ship will be completed, and then, says Lieutenant Settle, the United States will have an airship squadron that will make this country supreme in this class of naval vessel.

ENGLISH COTTON INDUSTRY FACES GRAVEST CRISIS

Government Reports Show Reorganization of Abandonment Is Necessary

BY BATES RANNEY

Manchester, England—(AP)—The Lancashire cotton industry, which draws most of its raw material from the southern United States and exports it as manufactured textiles to the near and far East, is face to face with the gravest crisis of its history.

The plight of the once vast industry is fully revealed in a government report, drawn up after months of investigation, which tells the industry, without mincing words, that it must reorganize or get out of business.

While trade statistics show that the world each year is using more cotton goods than before the war, Lancashire's share of the trade has declined dangerously.

A year ago the little cotton spinning town of Burnley had only 5,561 unemployed cotton operatives.
Today the figure is 15,000. The unemployed of Blackburn jumped from 7,443 last year to 27,000 today while the unemployed at Preston increased from 8,819 to 12,368.

In 1913 the Lancashire cotton trade sold the world seven billion yards of piece goods. In 1929 it sold only 3,750,000 yards and this year is selling even less.

While Lancashire's sales have been reduced by half foreign competitors have been making cotton goods cheaper and just as good as Lancashire and putting them on the market more attractively. The Japanese particularly, have almost supplanted the British in the China market and are rapidly driving the Lancashire product even out of India.

In effect, the British government has told the Lancashire spinners that they must abandon their history "wait-til-they-come-to-us" marketing system and adopt the American "make them buy" methods. Also that the surviving mills must be equipped with up to date machines and grouped in amalga-mations.

WOULD CONSTRUCT RETAINING WALL AROUND BUILDING

Mayor, Believes This Would Protect Municipal Structure from Damage

Kaukauna.—Construction of a large retaining wall around the municipal building to protect it during high water season may take place with the building of Lowest Bridge, Mayor B. W. Fargo stated Thursday. Stone from the south approach of the old bridge could be used for this work and the cost would be very little, he pointed out. It would protect the municipal administration building from damage and would greatly aid in the appearance of the building, he believes.

The wall would be about six feet high and 300 feet long. It would start from the new bridge and surround the building. The wall would be built along the end of the city property which extends about 150 feet from the building. This would make ample room for a lawn which would greatly improve the site. At the present time this cannot be done in connection with the high water catch spring. The land about the building is flooded and when the water abates it leaves a refuse there. This is an eyesore all year. The flood waters also damage the municipal building to some extent each spring, sometimes seeping through and flooding the basement.

City officials met with representatives of the state department this week and discussed the possibility of having the wall built in connection with the bridge. Mayor Fargo pointed out that there would be little difference in the cost of hauling away the stone from the old bridge or using it for the wall.

KAUKAUNA ELEVEN READY FOR SHAWANO

Tilt Saturday Afternoon Will Mark First Home Game of Season

Kaukauna.—Bager to keep their slate clean in the Northeastern Wisconsin interscholastic football conference Kaukauna high school football team will play their first home game Saturday afternoon against Shawano high school. The game is rated the hardest on the schedule. Two games remain to be played in the conference besides the Shawano game.

Coach Paul E. Little came to Kaukauna last year and began the season with a squad of freshmen and sophomores who were playing their football. He drilled them on fundamentals despite the fact that it cost him a loss in every game. This year the squad has shown the result of last year's training and is making a strong bid for the conference championship.

At the present time there are four teams at the top of the league. Two Rivers and Kaukauna each have two games won and none lost while Kaukauna and New London each have one game won and none lost. The Kaukauna Shawano game will be the feature game of the conference. Shawano a strong team defeated Clintonville last week 53 to 0.

The starting line-up probably will be Vile and Kook or VanLieshout at ends; Vaevenhorven and Nelson at tackles; Minkbege and Nielsen guards; Maue at center; Toms or Schwinderman at quarterback; Kuchelmeister and Noie at half back; McCormick at full back.

ATTENDS MEETING OF STATE WELL DRILLERS

Kaukauna.—Louis Faust, president of the Wisconsin Well Driller's association, was in Madison this week where he attended a joint meeting of the association with the state sanitary board and the state board of health. The matter of introducing a bill requiring all well drillers in the state to have a license was discussed.

It was stated that 80 per cent of all the farm wells in the state are polluted. This is due mostly to faulty construction or badly installed pumps. Requiring all well drillers to obtain a license before they work would eliminate much of the pollution in the wells caused by faulty construction, it was believed.

LEGION COMMITTEES PLAN MEMBER DRIVE

Kaukauna.—Several committees of the Kaukauna American legion met Thursday evening in legion hall. Plans for the annual membership drive to be started soon and the publishing of the annual Legion edition of the Times were discussed.

DRILLERS START WORK ON THIRD SOUNDING

Kaukauna.—Drillers have started work on the third sounding at the north approach of the Lowest Bridge. The rock strata was struck at the second sounding taken near the intersection of Lowest and Wisconsin-ave. The first sounding was completed at a depth of 52 feet and was taken on the west side of the approach near the end of the bank. The third sounding is being taken at a point directly east of the first sounding from the road bed.

CORN BORER KEPT OUT OF STATE THIS YEAR

Madison.—(P)—The corn borer, one of agriculture's deadly enemies, has been kept out of Wisconsin this year, E. L. Chambers, chief of the division of insect and plant disease control of the state department of agriculture and markets, announced today.

Inspectors along the Illinois and Michigan borders have failed to find a trace of the insect, he says. These are the points the borer is likely to enter with the infested area centered in the New England states, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Michigan.

Moths of the corn borer are active flyers and are easily carried distances of 20 to 50 miles on wind currents, Chambers reports and says for this reason that Wisconsin's shore along Lake Michigan is considered a possible entry point as federal inspectors maintain a quarantine against invasion from Indiana into Illinois. When present in small numbers, the entomologist states that the worm reduces the feeding value of the ear, but when it is numerous, ears are dwarfed in size or not produced at all. In such cases the entire plant breaks over and becomes entirely worthless.

Spread of the corn borer this year was much less than in previous years, Chambers says. This is attributed to the dry weather in the borer belt. Experiments being carried on by the federal government are aiding in the control of the borer but the state department expects to keep the borer out of Wisconsin as long as possible.

Frail Craft Carries Moro Crew Across Stormy Ocean

Manila.—(P)—Exhibiting the daring that in days gone caused them to be feared as Viking raiders of the southern seas, 152 hardly Moros arrived here after a voyage of 600 miles in frail "vintas," or native outrigger canoes.

Typical of the Moro, who is fearless, knows it and likes to show it, they chose for their trip the worst time of the year, the typhoon season.

They had two objects in their venture. One was to see the city of Manila, of whose wonders they had heard. The other was to hunt the giant sea turtle which abounds off the northern coast of Luzon. So they built bamboo shelters over thirty-four vintas, provisioned them with rice and dried fish and set out from their homes in Sulu, the southernmost islands of the archipelago.

They slipped quietly into Manila after a voyage of 25 days, attaining their port of few of the ordinary aids to navigation. They set their course by the sun and the stars and their own innate sense of direction. Hidden reefs, the constant menace of the white man's big ships, were seemingly avoided by instinct, for it is proverbial that the Moros never fall prey to those unseen dangers.

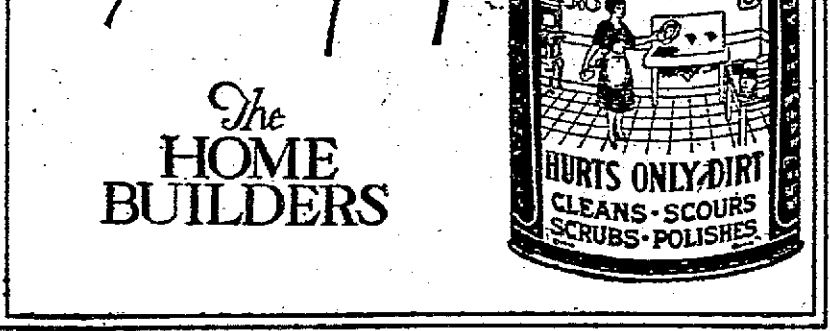

The expedition was led by four "admirals" who also acted as spokesmen and explained:

"We had heard Manila. We wanted to learn for ourselves if what we had been told was true. The Headman of Manila (Governor General Davis) came to the south in his white ship (the executive yacht Apo) and told us that we ought to see other places. And so we came."

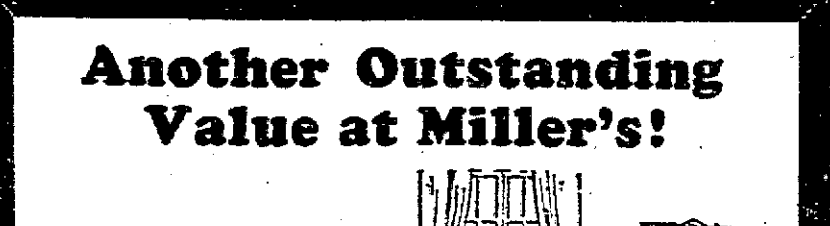

Where once their arrival would have been the signal for panic—for the Mohammedan Moros, used to make frequent raids on Christian Philippines—it inspired instead a great welcome. The voyagers were shown about the city in automobiles and hundreds of persons flocked to the waterfront to see the vintas.

After a few days the voyagers put to sea again for another 300 mile sail to north Luzon to hunt sea turtles. This they do by diving into the water and subduing the creature in its own element.

Shanghai.—(P)—The high cost of living moved further upwards here when the Shanghai Water Works, Ltd., boosted its rates 25 per cent on the plea that the slump in silver had doubled the cost of materials imported from Europe.

BOVINE T. B. LAW IS CONSTITUTIONAL

Iowa Supreme Court Files Decision to Reverse Lower Court

Madison.—Veterinarians, scientists, and farmers of Wisconsin may find support for the tuberculin test in a recent decision of the Iowa supreme court declaring the bovine tuberculosis law of that state constitutional, says Dr. James S. Healy, federal inspector for Wisconsin of the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture. The Wisconsin law on bovine tuberculosis eradication has never been given a supreme court test, but the Iowa law is basically the same as that of this state, Dr. Healy declares.

In deciding the case the Iowa supreme court considered the different points made by those opposing the present law. The high court reversed the decision of a lower court, declared that the legislature had not exceeded its authority in passing the law, that the law was not arbitrary, that it offers sufficient protection to property owners, that it was within the police power of the state, and does not interfere with due process of law. The court also ruled that the complainants failed to prove that the test is injurious to cattle.

The danger of bovine tuberculosis to human being as well as to live stock is recognized in the decision and the Iowa court maintained that the tuberculin tests is reliable, dependable, and advantageous.

ZUTA ESTATE TO PAY TAX TO BADGER STATE

Waushesha.—(P)—Through the inheritance tax, the state of Wisconsin was assured a share of the estate of "Gentleman Jack" Zuta, Chicago vice lord who met a gangster's death in a Delafield dance hall.

Zuta's heir, Ike Ginsberg, Middleboro, Ky., was informed by Dist. Atty. Herman Salen he must pay 3 per cent tax to the state on the $1,980, diamond ring, and other valuables found on the slain man's person. The state, Salen said, would permit deduction of $600 expended by Ginsberg on Zuta's funeral and $400 spent for a casket. Ginsberg agreed to pay the tax.

Desert Maidens Are Still Thrilled By "Love Courts"

Tazerouk, Hoggar, Southern Algeria.—(P)—Courts of Love, such as the troubadours celebrated in the middle ages, still are held here in the mysterious Hoggar, high plateau in the heart of the Sahara desert.

Strangely, this relic of long-ago customs, is practiced by the Touaregs, people who accord their women more rights, perhaps, than in any spot in the world.

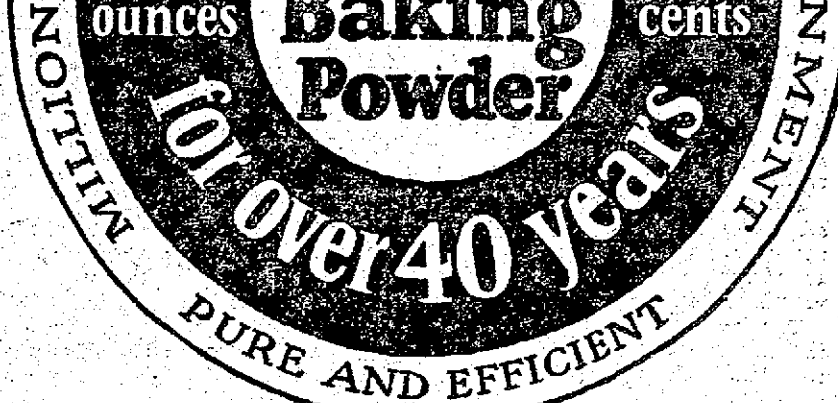

Women dominates. She marries whom she pleases. She controls her property. She may live apart from her husband without being called upon for a reason. Her children take her name, not that of the father.

The woman, moreover, although Mussulman, goes unveiled while the tall fierce looking warlike Touaregs men keep their faces covered, from the eyes down, awake and asleep, even while they eat. They are called the "veiled men of the desert."

So, the "Court of Love" also is woman's affair. They are held at all seasons, everywhere. Young women, married and unmarried assemble in a tent, the usual home of the Touaregs. Young men often come from a great distance to pay court to some girl of great beauty, wealth or rank.

The highest reward that can be given a man is permission to kiss a certain girl. As the man may not remove his veil, he merely lowers it below his nose. The man and the woman then rub noses as the woman kisses the man through his veil. The courts open after sundown and often last into the early morning.

LEAGUE HAPPY AS COUNTRIES BACK FEDERATION PLAN

Officials Pleased That Europe Finally Finds Self in Agreement

BY PLAUTUS I. LIPSEY, JR.
Geneva—(P)—The League of Nations is almost strutting with pride over the responses of governments to the French proposal for the formation of a European federation.

There was a time, shortly after Aristide Briand launched his scheme, when the league's ardent supporters wondered apprehensively what the plan for a "United States of Europe" would do to the influence and prestige of the league.

Forebodings held sway in some hearts at Geneva, until the replies from European governments began to arrive in Paris. They differed in detail and sometimes in fundamental elements, they told the world with unanimous voice:

"The European scheme of union must do no harm to the League of Nations."

Smiles replaced grave looks at Geneva. League quarters rejoiced at this testimony to the strength of sentiment for universality in international efforts at cooperation. One veteran commentator expressed the general satisfaction.

"We are pleased," he said, "that the first time Europe has found itself in agreement it is in favor of the League of Nations."

Other grounds for satisfaction are found by the league's advocates in the replies of 26 nations, besides the uniform demand that the league must not be weakened.

Objection to the establishment of a separate executive council and secretariat, expressed by and responding governments, is taken as a token of the league's prestige. Apparently it was feared that a distinct council and headquarters might in practice substitute themselves for these organs of the league and enfeeble them.

Again, the unanimous request that all states of Europe be included in the proposed federation is seen here as evidence that the ideal of universality is in a healthy condition.

The nations of Europe, faced by the Briand scheme, had a chance to find fault with the league's work, or to approve it. The whole-hearted response of governments is hailed at Geneva, in the words of a French writer, as "a plebiscite in favor of the league."

TITHE ENFORCEMENT ADVOCATED IN SYNOD

Fond du Lac—(P)—Enforcement of the tithe was advocated by delegates attending the annual meeting of the Wisconsin synod of the Presbyterian church convening here.

A tithe of 5 per cent was recommended in a stewardship plan for persons of meager income and contributions of from 10 to 15 per cent were advocated for persons of moderate to well to do circumstances, delegates contended.

FIND NO DEPRESSION IN THIS BADGER CITY

Elkhorn, Wis.—(P)—Signs of the depression in Elkhorn include a new municipal building, a memorial library, a county building, a church, a store, a de luxe filling station and seven homes, all under construction and representing an investment of a quarter of a million dollars. The outlay figures down to an investment of about $100 per capita in this city.

CALLS ITALO-RUSS AGREEMENT MENACE

International Affairs Expert Says New Pact Threatens Europe

Geneva—(P)—The new commercial agreement between Italy and Russia constitutes an alarming menace to the stability of Europe says William Martin, a distinguished observer of international affairs.

The contract calls for the purchase by Russia of farm machinery, automobiles and airplanes in Italy in return for the purchase by Italy of an equal value of coal, oil and mineral products in Russia.

Moscow, says Mr. Martin in the Journal of Geneva, makes her commercial policy serve political ends. The Soviet leaders, he asserts, seek to pave the way for a communistic regime in other countries by undermining the industries of those countries through dumping of soviet products at prices far below the cost of production.

Thus, he says, local industries would be forced to quit, creating unemployment, business depression and political unrest. The contract with Italy is seen as the first successful step in this program. The fact that Italy has little or no coal, oil or minerals of her own makes the situation doubly dangerous as it reacts upon several of Italy's sister states.

BADGERS TENSE AS GAME TIME NEARS; HAVE 37 MEN READY

Thistlethwaite Expected to Start His Veterans Against Pennsylvania

MADISON—The tension which grips every university town on the eve of big football games is fastening itself on Madison this week.

This is particularly evident at Camp Randall, where Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite and his staff are putting forth tremendous efforts to pre-paring the Wisconsin squad for the onslaughts of the Penn invaders, all ways one of the east's hardest hitting teams, in the homecoming contest Saturday.

There has been no fooling, no horse play, no whoopee in this week's Badger practice. Instead, a spirit of grim determination has marked every move on the field. Long defensive and offensive scrimmages have been held each day, the ferocity of which are known only to the few newspaper correspondents who are admitted to practice.

Every member of the Wisconsin squad has hurred himself into these preparatory skirmishes as fiercely as if even then facing the Red and Blue of Pennsylvania. Minor casualties have been numerous but thus far no varsity man has suffered from the grind and with the lightning of the work Thursday, that danger passed. Wisconsin will have 38 men on the field Saturday, fit and ready for the hardest kind of game.

It is possible now to say with certainty, who will make up the varsity line. It will be as follows, barring accidents: L. Captain Gantenbein; L. Lubratovich; L. Swiderski; C. Kruger; R. Kabat; R. Smith; R. Casey. The backfield is more uncertain because Coach Thistlethwaite has eight or nine backs from whom there is little to choose.

Because of the tricky and unfamiliar character of the Penn offense it seems probable that he will rely, at the start, on his most experienced backfielders. This would throw in Bernie Lusby at fullback; Russ Rehbohl and Sammy Behr, halfbacks; with Bucketts Goldenberg at quarterback. Goldenberg is a sophomore, Behr and Lusby are seniors and regulars for two years, while Rehbohl made the team last year as a sophomore.

The other backs who are sure to see service are John Schneller, sophomore fullback, who is coming along fast, Turry Omer, fullback veteran of three seasons; Joe Linfor and Walter McGuire, sophomore halfbacks; and Jimmy Wimmer and "Pip" Nelson, quarterbacks.

"PLAY FOR THE BOOK" WINS FOR A. H. S. SOPHS

One of these plays you read about in books and see portrayed in the talies won a football game Friday afternoon for Coach Leland Delforge's sophomore class football team from Appleton high school. The score was 6 and 0 and the loser was a delegation from Neenah high school football squad.

The play which resulted in the marker was in progress when the final gun sounded, but the youngster carrying the ball kept right on going and of course the marker counted.

With a few seconds to go Delforge sent Crane, a quarter-pint youngster into the game to call an end run. The signal was called. Johnson, another backfield man took the ball and started around the end. Just getting under way when the gun cracked.

He had presence of mind enough to remember recent instructions to keep going with a play when the gun barks or whistle blows while the play is in progress and as a result counted the marker. The dash was for 25 or 30 yards.

JACKIE MAY BOUGHT BY CHICAGO CUBS

Veteran Cincinnati Hurler Third Pitcher Acquired by Bruins

Chicago—(P)—William Wrigley's magnetic checkbook has drawn another veteran pitcher, Jackie May, into the Cub fold, the third since the Rogers Hornsby system of reconstruction was installed.

May, a left hander with nearly a dozen seasons of National league service, yesterday was purchased from the Cincinnati Reds in a cash deal. Last week Lester Sweetland, another southpaw, was purchased from the Phillies, and a day later Bob Smith, a Boston right-hander, became a member of the Cubs in a cash and trade deal.

May was with the Reds for seven seasons, and previously had been with the St. Louis Cardinals five years. Last season he won only three games while losing 11 decisions, but was said to have been handicapped by a sore arm.

SUAREZ, KID KAPLAN AT GARDEN TONIGHT

New York—(P)—Justo Suarez, rugged fighting man from the Argentine, meets the fifth major opponent of his American invasion in Madison Square Garden tonight—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., former world's featherweight champion.

Suarez, bidding for the lightweight title now held by young Al Singer, already has beaten such formidable rivals as Joe Glick, Herman Perlick, Bruce Flowers and Ray Miller. He rates a 2 to 1 favorite over Kaplan although the Connecticut scrapper is a deadly puncher.

Present plans are for Suarez to meet Jimmy McLarnin here Nov. 21 provided he gets by Kaplan. Then the South American will return home and return in the spring to battle Singer for the title.

MR. SHARKEY, SO IT SEEMS, DOESN'T REALLY WANT TO GO TO WORK

Chicago—(P)—Ho, Hum. . . . All Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight demands to box the veteran, battle-scarred Jack Renault, is $50,000, guaranteed, with a privilege of 40 per cent of the receipts.

For boxing Otto Von Porat or George Godfrey, all Sharkey wants is a guarantee of $150,000, no less. Sidney Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium, learned all about Sharkey's wishes in attempting to match him for an engagement Oct. 24.

Negotiations were immediately dropped. Strotz is thinking about sending the Boston ex-gob a survey of unemployment conditions, showing that a lot of fist fight customers are out of work—and broke.

As for Sharkey, Strotz yawned: "Ho, Hum."

KIMBERLY GRIDDERS MEET KAUKAUNA BEES

Kimberly—Coach Harper and his "Red Devils" will play host to the Kaukauna "B" team Saturday afternoon at the Kimberly ball park. The game promises to be a very interesting one for Kimberly will be out there to average a 12 and 0 defeat earlier in the season.

Coach Harper is sure his boys will come home with the bacon and believes the team will plunge through the Kaukauna team at will. Harper's biggest problem has been developing a good passing defense. By practicing practically every night this week, he feels sure he can stop the snappy Kaukauna offense and can launch one himself.

Harper will start the same team Saturday that started against Menasha's "B" team last Friday. Captain "Buck" LeMay will run the team at quarter, while Williams will probably start at full with Klein in reserve. Van Offeren and Wymberg will play at the half-back positions. Paul Alberts will toss the ball with Babe Le May and Versteegen at guards and Schwanke and Montie at tackle. Simon Vander Velden will hold down right end and either Edward Hofkins or Paul Jansen will play left end. During practice sessions this week Harper's reserves have been showing great form.

Saturday's game will be the first home game this season and a large crowd is expected to witness the fray.

Officials for the game are Coach Tommy McDonald of Brillion, referee; Curly Lange, umpire. The game will start at 1:30 sharp.

MARINETTE AND WEST BAYS CLASH

Only One Game Scheduled for Saturday in Valley Grid Conference

Only one game is scheduled for Saturday in the Fox river valley football conference, West Green Bay at Marinette. Another valley game was played this afternoon at Manitowoc when Fond du Lac clashed with the Shipbuilders.

Appleton high school's next game is a week from tomorrow at which time Sheboygan will be the opponent. The orange squad now is taking things easy and recuperating from injuries received in recent games and practice tilts.

A win for West Green Bay Saturday, something that is highly probable, will set the Bays on top of the valley heap with three straight victories. All other schools except East Green Bay have lost at least one game. The East Bays do not show this weekend but have won only two battles.

RENEW AGREEMENT FOR LITTLE SERIES

Chicago—(P)—The American association, victorious in six of the ten junior world's series which started in 1921, will sign a new agreement with the International league for another series, covering a ten year period, President Thomas J. Hickey of the American association said today. Rochester defeated Louisville for the 1930 championship.

coach is anxious to have one of his own countrymen. He has hope for next year, however, as Johnson and Michaelson are promising "Norskys" on his freshman team.

Firpo Wilcox, former University of Oklahoma athlete, is appearing as a professional wrestler in New York.

HERE'S AN ASSIST THAT WON'T GO INTO THE RECORD BOOKS

Quincy, Ill.—(P)—Credit Simmons to Earnshaw to Fox with an unusual assist.

Bert Heidebreder, fan as ardent as they make 'em, had tickets bought for the St. Louis world series game but he was stricken with appendicitis and rushed to a hospital so that he could not use them. His friends mourned his serious condition, Bert mourned the wasted tickets.

Then the Athletics trio reached here on an exhibition tour. Friends induced them to visit Bert's bedside. The result was startling. The patient immediately sat up for the first time. The next day he was let out of bed.

GREED FOR LARGE, EASY MONEY BACK OF CROOK GANGS

Chicago Church Federation Conducts Study of Hoodlum methods

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Chicago—(CPA)—Greed for large and easy money is found by the Chicago Church federation to be at the base of the huge gang organizations which have sprung up in large cities.

Just how large and how easy it is, findings of agents for the department of justice reveal. They still are busy at their task of ferreting out incomes of leading hoodlums, but have dug deeply enough to disclose that the life of crime may lead to riches.

Some typical income statements follow:

Jake Guzik, general manager of the Capone organization, was found to have earned $1,000,000 in the years 1927 and 1928. In 1929, when he suspected that the government was on his trail his earnings were more carefully covered and revealed only $54,000. The government wants a tax of nearly $300,000 on this amount and Guzik is under indictment.

Ralph Capone, brother of Alphonse and manager of the Capone Cicero interests, deposited in his accounts $1,871,000 during 1927, 1928 and in part of 1929. He evaded taxes of about $350,000 and is under three year sentence for conspiracy.

Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, beer partners, were discovered to have made $3,000,000 and sought to settle taxes for $100,000. They are awaiting trial.

Frank Nitti, chief justice of the Capone mob, was found to have had a three year income of $712,887 and the government claims that he owes $277,940. He is under indictment and is reported to have skipped country rather than take a chance on jail.

Sam Guzik, brother of Jake, was found to have had an income of $109,950 in 1927 but covered up after that.

CAPONE DOES WELL

The government has not revealed its findings with regard to the income of Al Capone, but the size of it might be imagined by the fact that he had admitted running through $5,000,000 in three years, just on living expenses.

After going deeply into the gang situation in Chicago, the political action committee of the Chicago Church federation was amazed at its ramifications.

It found bootlegging "controlled by willful and resourceful men, backed by immense capital, who carry on no-quarter warfare with their competitors and maintain a ruthless control of certain law-enforcing officers."

Likewise, it found that "gambling has a strangle hold upon the city," that "the business of the community is being preyed upon by a system of rackets backed by private citizens,

Circus Lures Young And Old, Says Press Agent

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—"What makes people go to the circus?" repeated Dexter Fellows, pausing in New York Thursday on his way to New Haven for the winter. "Frankly, I don't know." And he ought to, if anyone does, because for over 20 years he has been telling the world about Barnum, Bailey, and Ringling's show until now he is known as the dean of press agents.

"The lure of the circus," he said, waving a hand and chewing an excellent cigar, "is manifold. It's mixed up with the big tent and the fluttering bannets, the strange animals, the crowd, and the peanuts. For a thousand years, the circus in one form or another has been an institution. Its appeal is to children, young and grownup. Although I don't remember meeting many grownups who didn't go to the circus solely 'for the sake of the kiddies'. It's the classic excuse."

"But while nobody knows exactly why anybody goes to the circus, here are the circus features which most attract those who go."

CLOWNS MOST IMPORTANT
The clowns, the elephants, and the monkeys; named in the order of their importance. Barnum used to say that the clowns were the peg on which every circus is hung. Clowns draw the children, of all ages."

Mr. Fellows chewed the cigar meditatively for a moment. "But children aren't what they used to be; not city children, anyway. Nowadays city children are sophisticated at 10 years or so. Country children are still children. Both kinds go to the circus the same as ever, but I think the city child of around 10 doesn't get the kick out of it that the country child does."

And there's one thing the circus has done for humanity. It has preserved the horse. About the only place you can see a horse today is in the circus."

What the big new feature will be next spring, Mr. Fellows hadn't heard. The big new feature this season was the Ubangi, the African women with great disks in their lips. Now it can be told that in Chicago the Ubangi men and women got mad and ran away from the show because Chicago wasn't like France, a country which they admire. Rounded up, the disk-lipped and their spouses were locked in a box car. It annoyed the Ubangi to be asked how the women could kiss their husbands, or how they could eat.

"How they kiss is still a mystery," said Mr. Fellows, "but they can eat anything except spaghetti."

PHONE 405

THE Dancing Silhouette

BY NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

After a few courteous words to Dr. Sands, Inspector Mitchell led the day downstairs, but while he stopped to speak to the landlady, Thorne accompanied Jim to the latter's automobile.

"Send this wire to Captain O'Brien, Police Department, Chicago," he explained, scribbling the message even as he spoke and tearing out the sheet from the notebook. "Then go through the Rogers Gallery at headquarters and see if Mrs. Lawrence was ever mugged."

The last was almost whispered in Jim's ears. "I get ye," he mumbled in reply, stuffing the paper in his pocket. "But what about taking this gas to your car?"

"Do that later, then join me at Oakland. Park the car on the highway near the entrance and wait for me." Thorne turned back to the boarding house as Jim started on his errand; at the gate he met Mitchell just leaving.

"Can I give you a lift?" the latter inquired, seeing Jim drive away from the curb.

"Thanks, yes; let me get my hat," and before Mitchell could say more Thorne bolted back into the house. He found his hat where he had dropped it near the staircase, but instead of joining Mitchell immediately, he stepped again into the front parlor.

Mrs. Sims looked up at his entrance and struggled to rise, but Thorne stopped her.

"Here is my card," he took one as he spoke from his bill folder. "My phone number is there also; please call me if you need assistance, that is, as to money," noting her startled look; "funeral arrangements for Mrs. Lawrence will have to be made."

"That is what distracts me," admitted Mrs. Sims; she liked Thorne instinctively and placed confidence in the big silent man. "To think of her being put in the Potter's field -- the poor dear." She wrung her hands. "I have no idea where she was from, what part of the country, nor the names of her relatives."

"You took her in on faith alone?" with a sharp, questioning look.

The landlady colored to the roots of her hair. "Mrs. Lawrence paid a month in advance and didn't question the price," she said simply.

"Was Mrs. Lawrence amply supplied with money?"

"Lately," she answered, "there was some hitch two or three days ago at the Metropolitan Bank about some check."

"I see," Thorne smiled down at the nervous little lady. "Tell me, Mrs. Sims, did Mrs. Lawrence receive much company?"

The landlady shook her head. "No."

"Tonight," insinuatingly. "Think, Mrs. Sims."

Alas, the latter's daughter, who had been a rapt listener, broke into the conversation. "She told me, after you went out, Ma, to let whoever came and asked for her right upstairs," she volunteered. "And so when the gentleman came about eight o'clock, I showed him right up."

"Ah!" Thorne looked at the young girl, much pleased. "And what was he like -- this caller?"

The girl shook her head. "There wasn't much light." Observing Thorne's disappointment, she added: "He was 'bout middle height and wrapped up in his coat. He had nice teeth, though, and a pleasant smile -- that's all I saw -- just his mouth."

"Thorne, oh, Thorne?" Inspector Mitchell's voice boomed through the house as he poked his head inside the front door. "Come along."

"In a second," Thorne turned swiftly back to mother and daughter and addressed the latter in a low voice. "Are you quite sure Mrs. Lawrence's visitor was a man?"

The young girl's eyes almost popped out of her head.

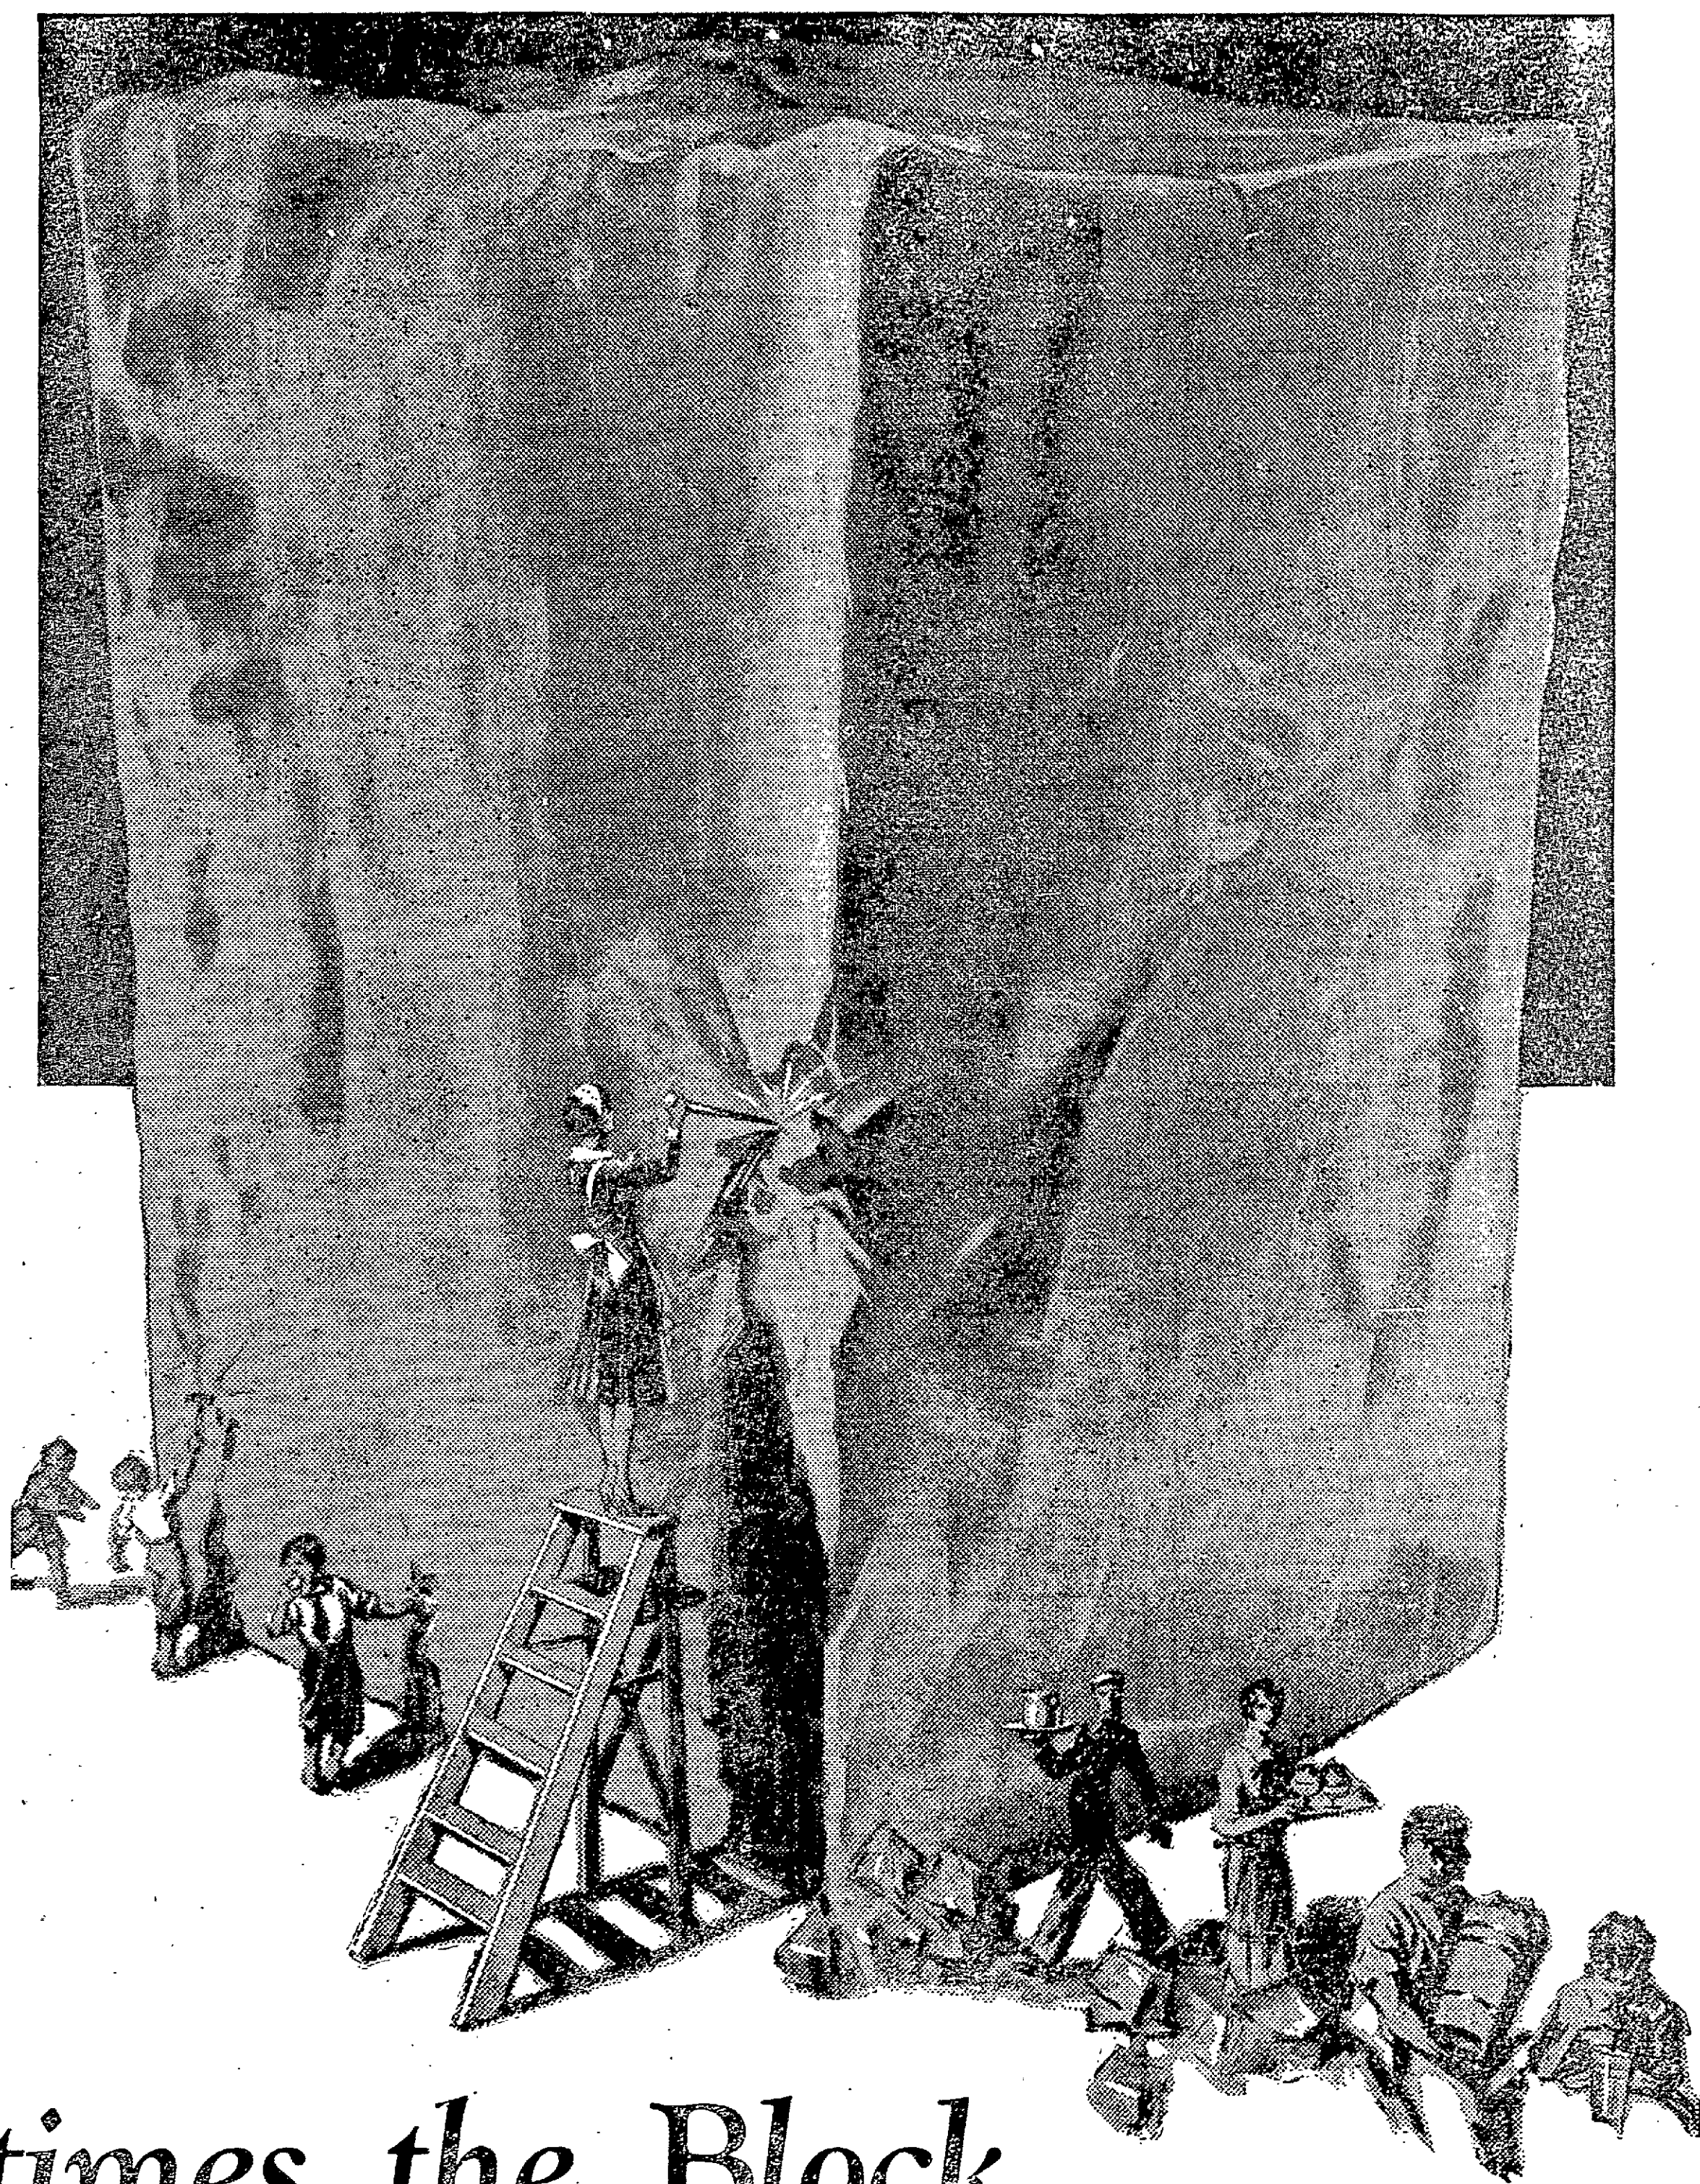

"Why, eh, why, eh," she stammered, "his voice was very soft and low -- that's all I know."
